BOYS WIN CANALOU GAME WED. 27-26 IN LAST 20 SECONDS—GIRLS LOSE 29-24

Sikeston and Canalou divided a doubleheader basketball bill at the local gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, when the local girls were nosed out in the final frame by a score of 29 to 24, and the Sikeston boys won their contest in the last few seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden flipped a basket to run the Sikeston score to 27. Canalou left the field with 26 points.

Both games were fast and rougher than is necessary for good basketball playing. Referee Stallings and Umpire Bridges called 34 fouls in the girls' contest, and 38 in the boys' game—enough at any event to have permitted either team to win the game had each free throw been made. In the girls' game the locals trailed throughout the half closing the second frame with the score 15 to 9 against Sikeston. They rallied in the third quarter, however, and forged ahead with a one-point lead at the close of the period. The fourth frame went nip and tuck with the score tied 19-19, 21-21 and 23-23. However, McLaurin and Wright, forwards for Canalou, managed to toss in two baskets, while the locals found the hoop for only one free throw. Despite the last minute excitement and the belated rally, the locals dropped the game 29-24.

Both games were exhibition games and will not affect standings of teams in their respective conferences. In the girls' game, players had to be substituted constantly until in the fourth quarter with Haywood disqualified on fouls, the Canalou coach found his reserve exhausted. The game was continued, however, with Haywood, guard, in the lineup.

The boys' game gave promise at the start of being a real battle. Fast passing, good floor work, and occasional flashy shots marked the contest. In the first quarter, Sikeston held a one-point lead for a few minutes, but the score at the close of the frame stood 8-8. Canalou managed to squeeze over a one-point margin in the second half and the score stood 16-15 against the locals at the close of the second period.

The locals came back to start the last half showing a little better brand of basketball, and succeeded in boosting their standing to 23 points, while Canalou flipped two baskets for a total of 20 points.

The slight lead was short lived, however, and the game waxed exceedingly warm in the closing period with the home boys holding their lead of one point for the first few seconds only. Shroat, forward for Canalou, placed a beautiful shot from the side court and his team took the lead which was maintained until the last 20 seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden registered a perfect shot to win the contest 27 to 26.

FARMERS URGED TO ADOPT LOW COST ANTI-COLLISION IDEA OF ROAD ENGINEERS

An idea originating in the local Division 10 Highway office to stop auto and wagon collisions at night, may ultimately be adopted in the State highway safety campaign.

The idea is simplicity itself. White objects usually loom up clearly in the lights of ordinary motor cars at night, and farmers are asked and urged to either paint or whitewash endgates and back axels of their farm wagons.

Anyone who has driven at night over some of the detours south of town last year, will remember a certain tree located in the center of the road.

Mr. Tree was made to stand out clearely by making him wear a whitewashed board.

Highway officials hope that farmers will at least try out this simple safety first idea of traveling on highways at night with wagons and teams.

NAT'L. COTTON CO-OP. PLANS RECEIVE OK

Washington, December 31.—The subcommittee on organization of the $30,000,000 national cotton co-operative finished its work today and the charter and by-laws were approved by the Federal Farm Board.

S. L. Morley of Oklahoma City, Okla., chairman of the subcommittee, said he would call a meeting of the national organization group, to be held at the offices of the Farm Board on January 9. At this meeting the documents prepared and tentatively aproved will be submitted for final action.

On a basis of present expectations the new corporation will immediately include as member stockholders the State Cotton Co-Operative Associations of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi (short staple), Tennessee, Arkansas, Lousana, Missouri, Oklahoma Texas, Arizona and California, representing an immediate marketing size of approximately 1,000,000 bales of cotton.

TWO NEW ARRIVALS ALMOST HAVE DISTINCTION OF BEING "NEW YEAR" BABIES

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schaefer on December 29, and Thurman Wright, who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wright on December 31, are already one-year-old—or at least they can point out that they were born last year.

NEW YEAR'S HOP MONDAY NIGHT IS SUCCESSFUL

The New Year's dance, sponsored by the American Legion at the new Armory, was attended by about 250 persons, who danced to music furnished by Roly Fenton's Paradise Garden orchestra. A total of 138 tickets was sold.

Silas Hall on Route 3 out of Matthews called to see us Tuesday. He reports Mrs. Hall as being a very sick woman.

Judge I. R. Kelso of Cape Girardeau, St. Louis and other points, was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday and stopped in The Standard office long enough to wish us a happy new year.

FULLER COMPANY, ENGINEERS, FINISH DISTRIBUTING SYSTEM ON MONDAY

Field work in the light and power survey started last week by the Fuller Engineering Company of St. Louis, was brought to a close Monday by C. D. Calkins, company representative. He was assisted last week by H. A. Fuller.

The data secured here will be turned over to workers in the St. Louis office for final tabulation. This survey of actual requirements for a distribution system and power plant in Sikeston was officially Okd. by a special Council meeting, and the work of bringing down to date the survey made three years ago was underway within a few days.

The Fuller Company will now complete their estimate, after which Sikeston voters will decide for themselves whether or not they want to own their light and power plant. It will be necessary to vote bonds to cover the cost of a distribution system, which includes outside poles, wires, transformers, etc. Machinery concerns have offered to finance the entire cost of the actual plant if the city will finance the cost of the distribution system.

Leaders in the movement for a municipally owned plant point out that the management of the plant, if one is to be built here, will be left to a non-partisan board. It is conceded that such management must never become a "political football."

GIRL, 18, DIES GIVING BIRTH TO TWINS, MONDAY

Mrs. Carl J. Norvall, formerly of Morehouse and since 1927 of St. Louis, died in St. Mary's Hospital, that city, Monday night after giving birth to twins, both of who preceeded their mother in death. The trio was laid to rest in one casket which was shipped to the Albritton Undertaking Parlor on the Wednesday morning train.

Funeral services were conducted at the McLaughlin Undertaking establishment in St. Louis Tuesday night. Interment was made Thursday at 1:30 o'clock in Dogwood Cemetery.

Mr. Norvoll, 19 years old, is employed at the Eden Pubiishing Company in St. Louis, having moved to that city four years ago. His wife and her step-father and mother, J. W. O'Neal, also moved to the city some three years ago.

CITIES SERVICE CO. LEASE SENSENBAUGHS

Arrangements were completed this week between Sensenbaugh Brothers Service Station and O. M. "Ichy" Arthur, whereby the Service Station will hereafter handle the full line of Cities Service products exclusively. New pumps and eqiupment were installed Wednesday of this week, making the largest service station in Sikeston and Southeast Missouri as a unit in the Cities Service organization.

The regular line of commercial Koolmotor high test anti-knock gas and the full line of oils and greases are being stocked.

According to R. E. Marsh, district supervisor and Ichy Arthur, sales representative for the company, stated that this policy of obtaining new leases was in line with the expansion program outlined for 1930 by the Cities Service Oil Company.

The parent station in Sikeston leased by E. E. Arthur is not affected by new arrangement with Sensenbaughs and will continue in business at the corner of Center and Kingshighway.

Cities Service has long been established in the North and East, and embarked two years ago on a South and West expansion program, which in 1930 calls for the expenditure of $150,000,000. One novel feature of this program lies in the fact that uniformly constructed service stations are to be constructed in new territory developed by the company.

JOHN WM. MILLER

John William Miller was born February 11, 1872 in East Prairie. He lived in East Prairie and vicinity until two years ago when he moved to Scott County. He departed this life December 27, 1929.

On March 14, 1895, he was married to Miss Mary Tompkins of East Prairie. To this union there were born eight children, three of which have preceded him in death.

Mr. Miller was for twenty-two years, a member of the Brotherhood of American Yeowman. He is also a member of one of the oldest families of Mississippi County. He was a devoted father and husband. It is said by his friends that he never shirked a duty.

Although he never belonged to any church, it is said that he showed a change in his life before his going away. He told a friend that he never lay down to sleep at night with first talking with his God, in prayer.

He leaves to mourn his going, a devoted companion, Mrs. Mary Miller, five children, Bryan, Lucian, Violet, Blach and George and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral was conudcted by Rev. A. C. Rudloff, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The Army Gains a Recruit

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bean of 4121 Harriet avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn., are the proud parents of a baby girl born December 19. If the army ever comes to the point of considering girls as possible members the little Miss Bean will certainly belong. Her father is a member of the U. S. A. 3rd Inf. at Fort Snelling, and a member of Co. H.

George says there is no place like the Army, good eats, and good beds are furnished, and he has a house to himself. Mr. Bean has been in the army for one and a half years.

NEGRO CAUGHT MAKING MOONSHINE IS JAILED

New Madrid, January 1.—Pat Burrow, negro of Canalou, was caught making moonshine by Deputies Harris and Wilkins early Saturday morning. Burrow's still was destroyed and Monday he entered a plea of guilty before Peter Smith and was fined $200 and costs. Unable to meet this requirement, Burrow is staying it out in jail.

Odell Daughtery of New Madrid, negro boy, charged with burglary and larceny was arrested and placed in jail Saturday night, after he broke into a house and stole a suit of clothes and sold same. He entered a plea of guilt before Peter Smith and was bound over for Circuit Court, Monday.

William Moore of St. Louis, was returned Friday to this city and placed in jail on a charge of forging several checks in Portageville. Moore readily admitted his guilt and was bound over for Circuit Court. Moore was previously a resident of Portageville and a letter betrayed his location and consequently led to his arrest by St. Louis officers, who turned the prisoner over to Sheriff Stanley.

T. A. Watkins of Risco was lodged in jail Monday night on a charge of disposing of mortgaged property and unable to fill bond will remain until his preliminary, which will be held January 10.

Noll Lankford and Joe Brown of Essex were arrested for being drunk and disorderly, near Morehouse Monday and plead guilty, paying a fine of $1.00 and costs.

COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY NITE

The City Council will hold its regular monthly meeting next Monday night, January 6. "Nothing but routine business is slated to come before the group", acording to P. H. Stevenson, City Clerk.

FIRST NIGHT SCHOOL CLASS TO ENROLL FRIDAY AT 7:15

The first night school class in commercial work will be enrolled this coming Friday night at 7:15 o'clock according to Supt. Roy V. Ellise, who has had the class under consideration for some time.

Miss Sarah Wilson, teacher of commercial work at the High School, will be in charge of the work. Prospective students will meet in the commercial department rooms. high school building, Friday night to talk over their individual problems and to enroll in one or more of the courses offered.

This idea is more or less an experiment, said Mr. Ellise in discussing the proposition. We plan to offer a nine-week course holding classes three nights each week from 7 until 8 and and from 8 to 9 o'clock. It represents our own interpretation of the now popular "short course" idea in higher education as applied to commercial courses. Eventually, the local school hopes to interest other old grads and persons out of school who have possibly been denied an opportunity to study certain subjects while in school, in this night school scheme. The entrance fee will be nominal, "just enough to pay expenses", according to school authorities.

MALONE TRIAL SET FOR NEXT TUESDAY AT POTOSI

The trial of John R. Malone, charged with having killed Arthur Marshall in a midnight restaurant brawl, will be held next Tuesday, January 7 before Judge E. M. Deering of Potosi, Washington County.

The case of Everett Dye, ex-sheriff of this county, is also set for that day.

Clay Hunter of New Madrid was a Sikeston business visitor, Tuesday.

Mrs. A. C. Rudloff is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. C. Hall, at Senath this week.

It looks as though the enforcement of the 18th Amendment is closely drawing to a civil war. First one and the other of the wets and drys are shot and the war grows more bitter. Some of the drys have murdered innocent people in cold blood and nothing done. Then we read where some wet has killed a dry officer and we feel like that is all right and only balances the thing. This is the wrong feeling, of course, but it creeps in just the same. To kill a man, and deliberately do it, as has most of the dry officers, for the matter of attempting to stop people from drinking liquor or beer, and let the foreign gangsters terrorize nearly every city in the country and the Federal Government spend $30,000,000 for one and nothing for the other, makes disrespectors of the 18th Amendment, the laws, and all. We would hate to be classed with the wet violators and we are certainly not for the dry killers as they have been operating. Give us some relief in a modification of some sort or we will all be racketeers, anarchists, socialists or worse.

This is a mighty good time for every married man who does not own a home to now make the start. It takes some money to secure a lot, but after that there are any number of Building & Loan Asociations who will furnish the rest. The amount now paid for rent will about pay the monthly dues and in the course of time you will own a home of your own. Look into the matter.

While the Administration at Washington has been telling of the wonderful prosperity in the land, they remind us much of the boy who whistles while passing a grave yard to keep up his courage. If there was real prosperity why have Big Business and Big Corporations tell us how many millions of dollars they expect to start to spend in 1930. We are just a little skeptical.

Beauty is but skin deep and ugly is to the bone, so said a chap who attended the dance the other evening, though he said if she was of good form he didn't mind gazing at her even if he couldn't see the bone.

The year 1929 is a closed incident except for the joys and sorrows it brought to families which will long be remembered. The New Year just beginning will be much what we make it. Let's make the most of it. Let's try to shed a little more sunshine and forget the frowns that fight to come to the fore. It doesn't always take money to make sunshine. Kind words backed by sincerity is the greatest of all. Stand ready to encourage with word and deed and forget as far as possible the unpleasant things of the past.

Of the reminders received by the editor during the holidays, none were more appreciated than the copy of "Robert Devoy", by Frank Sosey of the Palmyra Spectator, which was a true story of the Palmyra Massacre of civilians by Gen'l. McNeil, a Federal officer, during the Civil War.

While other branches of industry are seeking aid from the Government through the Farm Bureau Board or tariff laws, we fail to note where country editors are keeping a lobby to look after their interests in Washington, or asking for anything beyond the wood and pumpkins due on subscriptions.

The business manager hopes the editor will refrain from potgutted remarks in The Standard during the New Year. He is willing that he write paragraphs that the most "simple mind" can grasp, but wants him to lay off those that rasp.

Another resolve The Standard is making is to collect in full some of the accounts owing—or have them collected. It takes money to pay doctors, the hands, put up-to-date machinery in the shop, buy food, fuel and clothes, so govern yourself accordingly if you owe this shop.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever until you marry her and she refuses to let you live in ease and comfort as before.

A mighty good New Year resolve would be for every farmer and every townman to raise a garden sufficient to feed his own family if no more. The year just closed was one of the best on this farming section that we have had in many years and all hope and pray for many just as good to follow. However, it will not do to trust altogether to Providence, but do our part with a garden and a variety of farm crops to help. Lay out your land with a view of having something ready for the market all during the season in order to bring in money without having to borrow from the bank. The man who has been the least pressed has been the one who did not plant more than could be worked and who did not put all his eggs in one basket.

HAWES RECOGNIZED AS SENATE'S WET LEADER IN ARTICLE

In the current issue of Collier's, United States Senator Harry B. Hawes is classified as the leader of the wets in the Senate in an article under the caption, "Hobby Hawes", by "The Gentleman at the Keyhole".

A "man of sudden and tremendous enthusiasms", Hawes is characterized by the writer as "your true amateur, always alive to the possibilities of interest in everything, never settling down to the dull business of knowing everything about one thing and nothing about anything else".

"He has the advantage of good looks", the article continues. "In his younger days he was known as Handsome Harry Hawes. He has the charm which men have who take little thought of themselves, who adventure among enthusiasms, who are generous, who carry along through the years a great deal of the spirit of youth.

"One wonders how, pleasing himself as much as he has, he has been able to get far in politics. Nevertreless, he, of a class not usually successful in city politics, was once the Democratic boss of St. Louis. He has been, moverover, a Congressman and is now a Senator. He has the capacity of attaching people to him and of making them like him.

"I present this picture of him not because he is a great Senator, but because he, if anyone, is the leader of the wets in the Senate. There has been a great political mortality among the leading wets in the Upper House. Wadsworth was defeated. And Edge, a lesser figure, has become an Ambassador.

"So the most outstanding wet of today is Handsome Harry Hawes of Missouri. The clash between the wets and the drys is not as sharp today as it was a year ago or two years ago, perhaps, because Mr. Hawes has shuffled the prohibition question temporarily over to the Law Enforcement Commission.

"But partly because you do not have the always angry and intolerant Mr. Bruce of Maryland injecting the question into every discussion and partly because you do not have the striking and sensational Jim Reed keeping the issues always on the front page.

"Harry Hawes is not made of the same kind of stuff as those two men. He is not so sharp tongued and uncompromising. He is of too friendly a nature to use words that sting and burn in Senate debates.

"He finds his outlets in his enthusiasms about things that do not bring him into violent clash with his fellows in the Senate.

"But he has one old-fashioned Democratic virtue; his fidelity to the cause of individual freedom. There is enough of the old South about him so that he is himself an individualist. He is against prohibition as an invasion of the individual's rights.

LEGG CONFIDENT OF GRAIN MEN'S ACTION

Washington, December 27.—Confidence that grain traders would refrain from going to extremes to defeat the purposes of the agricultural marketing act was expressed today by Chairman Legge of the Farm Board.

After addressing the annual session of the American Farm Economics Association, he expressed this opinion in response to questions by Edgar B. Brossard, member of the Tariff Commission. Legge had outlined the policies and programs of the board.

"The only thing we are worrying about", said Legge, "is the collective action of our own clients, the farmers. That is going to tell the story, not the question of the opposition of outsiders".

Brossard asked if the board had any plan for meeting competition of private grain dealers. Legge replied the co-operatives had to face that competition and could become equally efficient, as they had control of the volume, providing they had "an equally efficient organization for the actual sales".

NO MORE TRADE DAY ADS

We have just received notice from postal authorities that newspapers containing advertisements of Trades Days are not mailable. If the postal department will now further reduce their price on printed envelopes below the cost of production and prevail on Congress to appropriate funds to cover the deficit, it will utilize another opportunity to embarass the newspapers of the country without serving any useful purpose.

In the advertisements of Trades Days carried in this newspaper, we have studiously avoided any mention of anything bordering on lottery, in order to try to conform to the departments' hairsplitting technicalities. We would like to know who ever attended a circus, a county fair or a carnival, that did not operate games and devices that were bold games of chance, and in which no pretense was made to obscure the element of gambling, yet we have heard of no instance of such concerns being barred from transmitting their publicity through the mails.

We have refrained from publishing accounts of Trades Day activities in Dexter through fear of running counter to some exacting postal rule, yet we read a full account of these same Daxter Trades days in newspapers published in neighboring cities, with impunity.

We realize that there is a reason for this watchful interest being particularly centered on Dexter, and we have very good ideas as to who it is that is provoking the watchfulness. If the manner in which the Trades Days are conducted in Dexter amounted to, or even approached the nature of a gambling or lottery scheme, we would honor the party who is making the complaint, but knowing that such is not the case, we regard his tactics as despicable.—Dexter Messenger.

LAST CALL FOR SOLDIER BONUS: CLAIMS MUST BE FILED BY THURS. MIDNITE

There are about 400,000 men and women in the United States who can get from Uncle Sam—for the mere asking—cash or a bit of paper worth from $1 to about $1600.

But these men and women, who are World War soldiers and sailors, marines and yeomanettes, must speak for it before Thursday midnight, or forever hold their peace.

The adjusted compensation act of 1924 provided for payment of all veterans or their dependents in accordance with the service they gave. It guaranteed a monetary recompense to every man who served more than 60 days at home or in the trenches, and the only proviso it laid down was that requests be made to the branch in which the service was rendered—before January 3, 1930.

This is the time of year to be especially careful of trichinosis. Most cases of this serious disease result from farm slaughtering of pigs and the eating of raw sausage from small, uninspected establishments. Pork and pork products should be thoroughly cooked.

HOWARD MORRISON WITH FEDERAL LAND BANK

Howard Morrison, well known in Sikeston and Southeast Missouri, is now associated with the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, having gone on duty Wednesday morning.

His duties will be similar to those of James Moccabee, who has been with this same company for the past several years.

Keep bread in a ventilated container, crackers in a tight tin or glass jar.

More than 7800 miles of Federal aid roads were built in 1928. In all, 74,783 miles of roads were improved during the year, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In a post-mortem examination of one or two chickens shows that the poultry flock has worms, 2 per cent by weight of finely powdered tobacco dust should be added to the dry mash. The dust should contain at least 1.5 per cent nicotine. This will control roundworms and also, to some extent, cecum worms, and lessen the danger to young chicks and poults next spring.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.
St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

ARTIFICIAL BROODING FOR BIGGER POULTRY PROFITS

A hen can act as foster mother for from 10 to 20 chicks while a small brooder can take care of 100, and one of moderate size can accommodate up to 500 or more. But little more attention is required for a single brooder than for a hen and her tiny family. The fuel cost for brooder operation is negligible in comparison with the labor cost required in caring for an equivalent number of chicks with hens. It is self-evident, therefore, that where profit is the primary requirement, in the handling of large numbers of chciks, artificial brooding is the onl method worthy of consideration.

Thousands of chicks can be raised successfully by artificial means where dozens would be handled with difficulty if hens were used. This is a fact so well known to professional poultrymen that they would probably question the need of discussing the problem at all. I have found, however, that many to whom the poultry raising is merely incidental to other occupations, are still inclined to mistrust any substitute for the time tested method of nature's own devising.

They are deterred, for the most part, by a belief that artificial brooding is unreliable unless supplemented by constant care. This may have been true some years ago but, today, moderately priced brooders are available which are absolutely dependable to operate, economical, and which require relatively little attention to insure satisfactory results.

Another factor which no doubt keeps many smaller operators from adopting artificial brooding is the multitude of conflicting claims made by the adherents of various methods. This tends to make a really simple matter appear quite complicated. As a matter of fact, there is no one method of outstanding superiority and no single device that is decidedly better than all others.

The thing to be considered first of all is the size of your flock as a whole, and next the size of individual broods which you can handle with the greatest ease. Then, buy as many units as you need, install and operate them according to the manufacturer's instructions. You will find that it is a really simple matter after all and a labor saver of decided value even for comparatively small numbers of chicks.

The principle used in all brooders is the same: some artificial means of furnishing heat as a substitute for the hen's natural body heat. The heating unit may use gas, kerosene, hot water, coal or electricity. Whatever is used, the general arrangement remains the same. The unit is centrally located under a circular metal hood so arranged that the heat is deflected downward from the hood onto the backs of the chicks. Around this hood is usually a slit curtain to partially confine the heat. This unit with hood and curtain is called the hover.

The hover unit is the central feature of any system of artificial brooding. Space is lacking in an article of this kind to discuss the various types of brooders, all of which have their uses. They will be discussed in a late article.

Artificial brooding offers you the opportunity to bring into poultry raising the same sort of mass production methods which make possible the gigantic commercial enterprises of our time. Without such methods, no business can ever progress beyond the "one horse" stage. If you raise chickens only for the needs of your own family, profit is a secondary consideration and the system employed is of no great moment. If, however, you are aiming for profits, you cannot afford to ignore the efficiency of modern devices for artificial brooding.

As a parting word of advice, let me counsel those who hestiate to adopt the modern method of brooding not to regard it as something of brooding not to regard it as something surrounded by mystery or hedged about by difficulties demanding professional skill. Quite the reverse is true, for, while it is true that artificial brooding has its problems, they are much the same as those of natural brooding and no more difficult of solution. There are, moreover, many compensating factors in favor of artificial brooding wrich make it the inescapable choice of all who want to realize the greatest possible profit from their chicken raising whether it is their sole source of income or merely a side issue.

The saddest sight that one could imagine was an 18-year-old mother lying cold in death with twin baby girls lying close to her side. This was Thursday morning and God took the mother and babes to Him on Monday morning last in St. Louis. To look on these forms involuntarily made one make the sign of the cross on which Jesus died that we might be saved. She gave her life to bring forth these babes then God took the babes that they might be with their mother. The bodies were at the Albritton undertaking establishment.

A Ziegfeld Show is coming to Sikeston.

For the first time in the history of this city the Ziegfeld banner will fly above the Malone Theatre when Florenz Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl" will be shown Thursday and Friday.

"Glorifying the American Girl" can truly be called an all-Ziegfeld production. It is built around the typical rise to Ziegfeld stage fame of an ambitious small-town girl who achieves "glorified" fame under the Ziegfeld pennant after many hardships and heart-breaks.

Mary Eaton, herself a young lady who had aspirations to Ziegfeld stardom and who eventually became Ziegfeld's premiere damseuse, has the leading role in the production. Scores of glorified American beauties support Miss Eaton in the lavish spectacle scenes. Helen Morgan, of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat" fame, and Eddie Cantor, inimitable comic of "Kid Boots", and "Whoopee", Ziegfeld stage successes, are cast in the production, appearing in individual skits in a special revue sequence of the picture.

J. B. McEvoy and Millard Webb wrote the story. McEvoy is the author of the story on which Ziegfeld's "Show Girl" was based.

The music and lyrics for "Glorifying the American Girls" were written by Walter Donaldson, Irving Berlin, Dave Stamper and Larry Spier. Revue finals and ballet ensembles were staged by John Harkrider and Ted Shawn.

In all it is a tuneful, danceful comedy-packed extravaganza, glamorously glorified with gorgeous girls—a film in which Ziegfeld out-Ziegfelds Ziegfeld.

TWO FORMER SIKESTONIANS MARRIED THANKSGIVING DAY

The couple arrived in Sikeston Christmas and spent the night at the home of Mrs. Jane Mills, with whom Miss Christian lived for four years while employed in Sikeston.

Details of the wedding are not available at present, but it is generally understood that the ceremony took place at Marian, Ark., the wedding party going to Memphis, Tenn., to spend the night.

Miss Christian enjoyed the friendship of the entire younger set in town. She left to assume a position with the Bell Telephone Company at Jonesboro, Ark., last August.

Mr. Allard was employed in the local highway office for a number of years, and left the city this summer to assume a similar position with the Webster Groves office, where he is employed at present.

The recent bride will remain at Jonesboro until another girl can take over her dutes. The couple hopes to be able to start housekeeping in Webster Groves by March next.

SCHOOL MEETS "NEW FACULTY" MEMBER AT ASSEMBLY

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise complied with the insistent demands of his student body Monday morning to hold a special assembly. Shortly after the students were assembled, Mr. Ellise explained that the meeting was called to order to introduce a "new" faculty member, and immediately called upon Mrs. Lottie Dover Cunningham for a speech.

The students were reminded that Christmas vacation was now over and that teachers should keep in mind the fact that it might require a day or so for the boys and girls to get back into the swing of studying. Exams were also brought to mind by the statement that reviews, thorough in nature, would be on schedule until next Thursday and Friday, the two fatal days.

Attention was directed to the proposed night school for adults. Mr. Ellise pointed out that persons other than students could avail themselves of an opportunity to learn commercial work, typing, shorthand and bookkeeping and perhaps other subjects by attending special classes at night. Those interested are urged to get in touch with him at once so that plans for the school can be perfected.

The year 1930 holds much in store for Sikeston and her citizens if they will get behind the projects. Two of the main things will be the erecting of a municipal, power, light and ice plant, and the laying of the concrete slab on Highway 61 direct north of Sikeston to Ancell. The former will soon pay for itself and then be the means of financing other improvements. The latter, if placed on or about the present survey directly north, will give us a concrete connection through the city, both north and south. If the slab is finally placed on the east survey, skirting Sikeston, we never will get a slab built north to it. This should not be forgotten.

The r. h. would not, did not move. "Slam" came the brick, and broke a windshield. Somehow we feel that justice miscarried. We sometimes feel that an armored car would be the thing to teach a road hog a few rules of common sense driving. Also we would like to have just one full swipe at the nitwit who dodges out of side roads onto boulevards, heavily traveled streets and arterial highways.

After an improved road has been made, little attention is paid as a rule to the roadside. From the point of view of the driver, the road may be a marvelous piece of work but to the esthetically inclined passenger, the outlook may be quite different. The average highway is lined with jagged cuts, homely banks, tree trunks and refuse of one kind or another. The Vermont Chamber of Commerce has started in upon a campaign to beautify the roads and roadsides and is endeavoring to make it a nation-wide movement. Connecticut sets out rambler roses, woodbine and honeysuckle. Many other states set out trees in large numbers. This, together with the efforts being made to overcome the billboard nuisance, may have the effect of restoring the rural scenery to an acceptable condition.

Well, we have heard it said that Walter Kendall will probably have as competitors for the office of police chief, both J. H. Hayden and Wade Tucker. As it is early in the year and the election not until April, there is plenty of time for a dozen more to get the bee in their bonnet. Only $5 for an announcement in this race.

We haven't very much use for the man who makes his living in a town but who constantly buys the things he and his family need from some other town or city. He is nothing but a parasite, feeding off the community but contributing nothing to it. And we can see no difference between the man who buys his clothing, furniture or anything else away from home and the man or firm who sends away for his printing—it is the same principle and the same process exactly.—Democrat Argus.

More than 100 years before the Christian era a form of talking picture with motion originated in China and has continued in popularity to the present day. This is the ancient Chinese shadow play which gave the illusion of talking pictures by having readers to produce voice effects. The scenarios of the shadow plays are still derived from the literary drama of the legitimate stage but they have more appeal to the masses as the worlds are recited in the current vernacular rather than in the highly classic diction of the stage.

After Bus and Truck Collided In Fog Saturday

One serious and 19 minor injuries resulted from the collision of a Pickwick-Greyhound bus at 8:30 o'clock last Saturday morning with Bill Carson's Dodge truck, driven by Walker Bell Chaney on Highway 61, four and one-half miles south of Sikeston. Chaney's truck and the bus were both southbound.

The rear end collision is accounted for by the fact that one of the heaviest fogs recorded in Southeast Missouri blanked out objects even at short distances, and made drivng hazardous. Notice the sacks of sugar on the bus bumper. A tarpaulin originally placed over the load of groceries, finally rested over the crushed roof of the bus.

Passengers in the bus were showered with a deluge of cane sugar and table syrup, which rushed backwards through the shattered windshield.

Chaney was removed to St. Mary's Infirmary, Cairo, Ill., Sunday afternoon, and underwent a major operation the following day. Relatives said Tuesday, that he withstood the operation in good shape, and was fully conscious. He was able to drink a glass of lemonade Tuesday afternoon, the first bit of food since the accident.

BAG LIMITS OF DUCKS, GEESE TO BE CUT IN HALF IN 1930

Washington, December 31.—The bag limit for ducks next year will be 15 and after a hunter kills four geese he will be through for the day.

Secretary Hyde announced today that the changes in Federal regulations would go into effect after the present hunting season and that the possession limit would be reduced to 30 ducks and eight geese. At present the bag limit under Federal law for ducks is 25, and for geese is eight.

An extensive investigation by the Department of Agriculture, which showed that water fowl were not holding their own, was a factor in the decision to reduce the limit.

Blame for the decrease in the number of wild fowl was placed largely upon the elimination of reclamation of former breeding grounds in the Northwest States and Canada.

"During all the years that I suffered I tried medicines and treatments galore but until I started on Konjola I did not get the slightest benefit", said Miss Bertha Park, 5170 San Francisco avenue, St. Louis. "Three years of suffering from stomach trouble made a wreck of me. For every meal I paid a price in misery. Gas, bloating, heartburn and indigestion pains were sure to follow. One of the services accorded the road users in Missouri by the State Highway Department is this "puncture subtracter", or road magnet. Sikeston motorists will remember the big yellow truck with its three 900-pound electro magnetic bells which pulled some 15 gallons of nails and bits of iron and steel from Highway 61 between this city and Morley alone. The insert shows the business end of the road magnet with two of the magnetic bells in position for working. Power is generated by a gasoline engine and dynamo carried on the truck body proper. Large photo to shows the accumulation of potential punctures by one magnet.

American cheese made on the farm may be paraffined to prevent drying and molding. A convenient way to do this is to heat the paraffin to about 220 degrees F. Roll the cheese in the hot paraffin about 5 or 10 seconds. The cheese is then removed and the top and bottom are dipped. The paraffin must be hot, or it will be too thick to adhere to the cheese.

Poultry need more mineral feed in proportion to their total feed requirements than do most other classes of animals. Mineral feed is best supplied in the form of crushed oyster shells or limestone, which supply the calcium for eggshell formation. The shells or limestone should be kept before the hens all the time. Steamed bone meal, which contains lime and phosphorous, may also be given, usually mixed in with the mash ration.

PROSECUTOR SEEKING MANSLAUGHTER CASE AGAINST DRY PATROL

Buffalo, N. Y., December 27.—The assertion that someone was guilty of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., Christmas night by the three members of the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-2245 was made by District Attorney Guy B. Moore today following upon a City Court inquest in Downey's death. The inquest was adjourned until tomorrow morning at Moore's request.

Moore said the facts, as presented to him, showed the shooting resulted from "culpable negligence".

He asked that the adjournment be made in order that he might examine the statements made by the coast guardsmen Thursday night.

United States Attorney R. H. Templeton, who was prevented by Moore from questioning State witnesses at the hearing, asked that tre men be put on the stand today.

Moore said that might be done if the three would waive immunity of trial for manslaughter. Templeton made no answer and the inquest was adjourned.

Templeton said yesterday he believed the men acted in line of duty. He said they gave Downey, whom they suspected of carrying liquor in his boat, proper warning before they fired on the fleeing craft.

Today's testimony included that of three Buffalo policemen who said they saw two coast guardmen standing near the dock where Downey was lying wounded in his boat.

Moore asked one of the policemen, C. M. Meyers, if the guardmen were making any effort to help and Meyers answered that as far as he could see, they were not.

He said policemen called the ambulance to take Downey to emergency hospital and they, the policemen, bore Downey virtually unconscious up a ladder from the boat.

Capt. Paul H. Forner of the Coast Guard testified that he had ordered the three men, Orville LaGrant, Randolph H. Thompson and Asa Ennes, to man a boat Christmas afternoon and intercept an elleged rum runner headed toward Buffalo from Canada. Thompson, he said, later reported the shooting to him.

Last night Moore questioned the three guardmen for nearly three hours. The guards agreed, he said, to testify at the inquest. They told him, he said, they thought Downey was attempting to escape with contraband.

A mole's appetite seems to be almost insatiable and it sometimes eats more than its own weight in a day. In an examination of the contents of moles' stomachs, the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey found in one stomach the remains of 171 small white grubs and in another 250 ant puparia.

TWICE A WEEK SIKESTON STANDARD

DAY BY DAY WITH GOVERNOR PATTERSON

Here is 1930. I find it easier to writer than 1929 and that is something in its favor. It beats all how tempus fugits as the old lady remarked, looking over her spectatcles at nothing in particular. That though, is the way of time. It never stands still, but is forever moving, bearing on those who live on the bosom of its restless tide while others who have dropped by the wayside take no note of its flight.

This should be a better year than the last. It will be, if we have learned from experience and have the virtue to repent of our mistakes committed in the old year, and the energy to atone.

I could wish for our country and its people for the New Year no better wish, that it, and they, should not be led astray by the illusions and delusions which so obscured their sight and changed the temper of their minds, in the year of 1929.

It's dangerous. I might say it is fatal, for any state or any man to be without a God, and the sense of responsibility implied by such a belief, but we have come upon an era when this belief is being assailed, both openly and insidiously, as never before in our country, and we have suffered from it. The restlessness and discontent among so many people that we observe has been largely caused by crowding out from their thoughts those spiritual values, which when lost, can never be replaced. Our age is intensely scientific. No other age has been so dominated by its influence and that influence would be wholly good if science kept always within its sphere and refused to enter paths on which it can shed no light, or to invade the kingdoms of this spirit which it can never invest and make subject to its sway. Science has become too arrogant in its great success. It is not the all sufficient thing in life as it sometimes professes to be, or perhaps it would be fairer and more accurate to say, as some of its misled votaries are vain enough to supose. The true scientific mind does not labor under this hallucination. It is more generally a failing of those who mistake themselves for scientists, or the shallow thinkers who following the scientific train, and imagine their spiritual negations give them some sort of intellectual superiority. They cause a great deal of trouble to others whose mental processes are rather easily confused and who are left helplessly drifting on a sea of uncertainty.

I have never been able to understand the pleasure it gave to proclaim a disbelief in matters involving man's creation and his immortality or attempt to shake the belief of others, leaving them hopeless. I have never known or heard of one of these spiritual iconoclasts who offered anything in the place of what he was trying to destroy or of one who has ever caused a human being to become stronger or better satisfied. What these times and this civilization needs is less doubt and more belief. It needs less the rule of materialism applied to life and its unexpressed desires and meanings and more consciousness of the existence of the soul itself and the verity of its urgings. Less infidelity and more fidelity should be our hope and slogan for 1930.

By that sign we shall conquer, redeem our lost possessions and establish order.—Commercial Appeal.

THE SALESMAN AT YOUR DOOR

ask him whom he represents.

You have a right to know if the agent who raps at your door or calls at your office, represents a reliable firm.

Many complaints reach the Better Business Bureau AFTER housewives have had an unsatisfactory experience. Some say that money has been paid on account for an article and that nothing has been received. Others say that merchandise received was of inferior quality or grossly misrepresented.

There are many dependable manfacturers and selling organizations who distribute their product through the use of salesmen who call personally upon the consumer. They sell a worth-while product and are financially respnosible. They welcome investigation.

Their success has been preyed upon by hordes of selling agents many of whom are free lance fakers who are showing a worthless product, or who simply exhibit samples with no intention of doing more than collect a down payment.

It is good practice to demand credentials from agents who visit your home or your office. If the firm or the product is unknown to you, GET THE FACTS from the Better Business Bureau. There is no cost.

Before you buy from strangers—get the facts.

To produce a stippled finish on walls, apply a flat wall paint somewhat thicker than that ordinarily used, and dab the surface, before the paint sets, with a stiff, dry brush held a right angles. A regular stippling brush is best for this purpose. If a mottled finish is wanted, apply wall paint over a ground color of another shade, and while still wet, touch the surface lightly with crinkled wrapping paper loosely held.

KID NEW YEAR GETS QUIET RECEPTION HERE

Boiserous celebrations usually in evidence on New Year's eve, were not in evidence in Sikeston. A few cannon crackers responded on the streets early in the evening, but at midnight the tolling of a single bell and the popping of a handful of firecrackers sufficed as far as outward signs of the reception were concerned.

Whether or not there was the customary tinkle of ice and glasses, and the popping of corks in private homes and at parties, is of course not for publication. So far as we know, prohibition agents made no secial attempts to dry up the city.

A few parties in private homes looked for the 1930 arrival in well-manner watch parties. One Sikeston radio fan reports listening in on four different New Year's parties, Eastern Standard, Central, Rocky Mountain and West Coast time.

VOLUME 18 — SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 3, 1930 — NUMBER 27

Sikeston and Canalou divided a doubleheader basketball bill at the local gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, when the local girls were nosed out in the final frame by a score of 29 to 24, and the Sikeston boys won their contest in the last few seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden flipped a basket to run the Sikeston score to 27. Canalou left the field with 26 points.

Both games were fast and rougher than is necessary for good basketball playing. Referee Stallings and Umpire Bridges called 34 fouls in the girls' contest, and 38 in the boys' game—enough at any event to have permitted either team to win the game had each free throw been made. In the girls' game the locals trailed throughout the half closing the second frame with the score 15 to 9 against Sikeston. They rallied in the third quarter, however, and forged ahead with a one-point lead at the close of the period. The fourth frame went nip and tuck with the score tied 19-19, 21-21 and 23-23. However, McLaurin and Wright, forwards for Canalou, managed to toss in two baskets, while the locals found the hoop for only one free throw. Despite the last minute excitement and the belated rally, the locals dropped the game 29-24.

Both games were exhibition games and will not affect standings of teams in their respective conferences. In the girls' game, players had to be substituted constantly until in the fourth quarter with Haywood disqualified on fouls, the Canalou coach found his reserve exhausted. The game was continued, however, with Haywood, guard, in the lineup.

The boys' game gave promise at the start of being a real battle. Fast passing, good floor work, and occasional flashy shots marked the contest. In the first quarter, Sikeston held a one-point lead for a few minutes, but the score at the close of the frame stood 8-8. Canalou managed to squeeze over a one-point margin in the second half and the score stood 16-15 against the locals at the close of the second period.

The locals came back to start the last half showing a little better brand of basketball, and succeeded in boosting their standing to 23 points, while Canalou flipped two baskets for a total of 20 points.

The slight lead was short lived, however, and the game waxed exceedingly warm in the closing period with the home boys holding their lead of one point for the first few seconds only. Shroat, forward for Canalou, placed a beautiful shot from the side court and his team took the lead which was maintained until the last 20 seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden registered a perfect shot to win the contest 27 to 26.

NEGRO CAUGHT MAKING MOONSHINE IS JAILED

New Madrid, January 1.—Pat Burrow, negro of Canalou, was caught making moonshine by Deputies Harris and Wilkins early Saturday morning. Burrow's still was destroyed and Monday he entered a plea of guilty before Peter Smith and was fined $200 and costs. Unable to meet this requirement, Burrow is staying it out in jail.

Odell Daughtery of New Madrid, negro boy, charged with burglary and larceny was arrested and placed in jail Saturday night, after he broke into a house and stole a suit of clothes and sold same. He entered a plea of guilt before Peter Smith and was bound over for Circuit Court, Monday.

William Moore of St. Louis, was returned Friday to this city and placed in jail on a charge of forging several checks in Portageville. Moore readily admitted his guilt and was bound over for Circuit Court. Moore was previously a resident of Portageville and a letter betrayed his location and consequently led to his arrest by St. Louis officers, who turned the prisoner over to Sheriff Stanley.

T. A. Watkins of Risco was lodged in jail Monday night on a charge of disposing of mortgaged property and unable to fill bond will remain until his preliminary, which will be held January 10.

Noll Lankford and Joe Brown of Essex were arrested for being drunk and disorderly, near Morehouse Monday and plead guilty, paying a fine of $1.00 and costs.

COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY NITE

The City Council will hold its regular monthly meeting next Monday night, January 6. "Nothing but routine business is slated to come before the group", acording to P. H. Stevenson, City Clerk.

FIRST NIGHT SCHOOL CLASS TO ENROLL FRIDAY AT 7:15

The first night school class in commercial work will be enrolled this coming Friday night at 7:15 o'clock according to Supt. Roy V. Ellise, who has had the class under consideration for some time.

Miss Sarah Wilson, teacher of commercial work at the High School, will be in charge of the work. Prospective students will meet in the commercial department rooms. high school building, Friday night to talk over their individual problems and to enroll in one or more of the courses offered.

This idea is more or less an experiment, said Mr. Ellise in discussing the proposition. We plan to offer a nine-week course holding classes three nights each week from 7 until 8 and and from 8 to 9 o'clock. It represents our own interpretation of the now popular "short course" idea in higher education as applied to commercial courses. Eventually, the local school hopes to interest other old grads and persons out of school who have possibly been denied an opportunity to study certain subjects while in school, in this night school scheme. The entrance fee will be nominal, "just enough to pay expenses", according to school authorities.

An idea originating in the local Division 10 Highway office to stop auto and wagon collisions at night may ultimately be adopted in the State highway safety campaign.

The idea is simplicity itself. White objects usually loom up clearly in the lights of ordinary motor cars at night, and farmers are asked and urged to either paint or whitewash endgates and back axels of their farm wagons.

Anyone who has driven at night over some of the detours south of town last year, will remember a certain tree located in the center of the road.

Mr. Tree was made to stand out clearely by making him wear a whitewashed board.

Highway officials hope that farmers will at least try out this simple safety first idea of traveling on highways at night with wagons and teams.

NAT'L. COTTON CO-OP. PLANS RECEIVE OK

Washington, December 31.—The subcommittee on organization of the $30,000,000 national cotton co-operative finished its work today and the charter and by-laws were approved by the Federal Farm Board.

S. L. Morley of Oklahoma City, Okla., chairman of the subcommittee, said he would call a meeting of the national organization group, to be held at the offices of the Farm Board on January 9. At this meeting the documents prepared and tentatively aproved will be submitted for final action.

On a basis of present expectations the new corporation will immediately include as member stockholders the State Cotton Co-Operative Associations of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi (short staple), Tennessee, Arkansas, Lousana, Missouri, Oklahoma Texas, Arizona and California, representing an immediate marketing size of approximately 1,000,000 bales of cotton.

Mrs. Sam Gossett and friends of Delta, visited here Saturday.

TWO NEW ARRIVALS ALMOST HAVE DISTINCTION OF BEING "NEW YEAR" BABIES

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schaefer on December 29, and Thurman Wright, who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wright on December 31, are already one-year-old—or at least they can point out that they were born last year.

NEW YEAR'S HOP MONDAY NIGHT IS SUCCESSFUL

Silas Hall on Route 3 out of Matthews called to see us Tuesday. He reports Mrs. Hall as being a very sick woman.

Judge I. R. Kelso of Cape Girardeau, St. Louis and other points, was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday and stopped in The Standard office long enough to wish us a happy new year.

Field work in the light and power survey started last week by the Fuller Engineering Company of St. Louis, was brought to a close Monday by C. D. Calkins, company representative. He was assisted last week by H. A. Fuller.

The data secured here will be turned over to workers in the St. Louis office for final tabulation. This survey of actual requirements for a distribution system and power plant in Sikeston was officially Okd. by a special Council meeting, and the work of bringing down to date the survey made three years ago was underway within a few days.

The Fuller Company will now complete their estimate, after which Sikeston voters will decide for themselves whether or not they want to own their light and power plant. It will be necessary to vote bonds to cover the cost of a distribution system, which includes outside poles, wires, transformers, etc. Machinery concerns have offered to finance the entire cost of the actual plant if the city will finance the cost of the distribution system.

Leaders in the movement for a municipally owned plant point out that the management of the plant, if one is to be built here, will be left to a non-partisan board. It is conceded that such management must never become a "political football".

Mr. Norvoll, 19 years old, is employed at the Eden Publishing Company in St. Louis, having moved to that city four years ago. His wife and her step-father and mother, J. W. O'Neal, also moved to the city some three years ago.

CITIES SERVICE CO. LEASE SENSENBAUGHS

Arrangements were completed this week between Sensenbaugh Brothers Service Station and O. M. "Ichy" Arthur, whereby the Service Station will hereafter handle the full line of Cities Service products exclusively. New pumps and eqiupment were installed Wednesday of this week, making the largest service station in Sikeston and Southeast Missouri as a unit in the Cities Service organization.

The regular line of commercial Koolmotor high test anti-knock gas and the full line of oils and greases are being stocked.

According to R. E. Marsh, district supervisor and Ichy Arthur, sales representative for the company, stated that this policy of obtaining new leases was in line with the expansion program outlined for 1930 by the Cities Service Oil Company.

The parent station in Sikeston leased by E. E. Arthur is not affected by new arrangement with Sensenbaughs and will continue in business at the corner of Center and Kingshighway.

Cities Service has long been established in the North and East, and embarked two years ago on a South and West expansion program, which in 1930 calls for the expenditure of $150,000,000. One novel feature of this program lies in the fact that uniformly constructed service stations are to be constructed in new territory developed by the company.

A. 3rd Inf. at Fort Snelling, and a member of Co. H.

It looks as though the enforcement of the 18th Amendment is closely drawing to a civil war. First one and the other of the wets and drys are shot and the war grows more bitter. Some of the drys have murdered innocent people in cold blood and nothing done. Then we read where some wet has killed a dry officer and we feel like that is all right and only balances the thing. This is the wrong feeling, of course, but it creeps in just the same. To kill a man, and deliberately do it, as has most of the dry officers, for the matter of attempting to stop people from drinking liquor or beer, and let the foreign gangsters terrorize nearly every city in the country and the Federal Government spend $30,000,000 for one and nothing for the other, makes disrespectors of the 18th Amendment the laws, and all. We would hate to be classed with the wet violators and we are certainly not for the dry killers as they have been operating. Give us some relief in a modification of some sort or we will all be racketeers, anarchists, socialists or worse.

This is a mighty good time for every married man who does not own a home to now make the start. It takes some money to secure a lot, but after that there are any number of Building & Loan Asociations who will furnish the rest. The amount now paid for rent will about pay the monthly dues and in the course of time you will own a home of your own. Look into the matter.

While the Administration at Washington has been telling of the wonderful prosperity in the land, they remind us much of the boy who whistles while passing a grave yard to keep up his courage. If there was real prosperity why have Big Business and Big Corporations tell us how many millions of dollars they expect to start to spend in 1930. We are just a little skeptical.

Beauty is but skin deep and ugly is to the bone, so said a chap who attended the dance the other evening, though he said if she was of good form he didn't mind gazing at her even if he couldn't see the bone.

The year 1929 is a closed incident except for the joys and sorrows it brought to families which will long be remembered. The New Year just beginning will be much what we make it. Let's make the most of it. Let's try to shed a little more sunshine and forget the frowns that fight to come to the fore. It doesn't always take money to make sunshine. Kind words backed by sincerity is the greatest of all. Stand ready to encourage with word and deed and forget as far as possible the unpleasant things of the past.

Of the reminders received by the editor during the holidays, none were more appreciated than the copy of "Robert Devoy", by Frank Sosey of the Palmyra Spectator, which was a true story of the Palmyra Massacre of civilians by Gen'l. McNeil, a Federal officer, during the Civil War.

While other branches of industry are seeking aid from the Government through the Farm Bureau Board or tariff laws, we fail to note where country editors are keeping a lobby to look after their interests in Washington, or asking for anything beyond the wood and pumpkins due on subscriptions.

The business manager hopes the editor will refrain from potgutted remarks in The Standard during the New Year. He is willing that he write paragraphs that the most "simple mind" can grasp, but wants him to lay off those that rasp.

Another resolve The Standard is making is to collect in full some of the accounts owing—or have them collected. It takes money to pay doctors, the hands, put up-to-date machinery in the shop, buy food, fuel and clothes, so govern yourself accordingly if you owe this shop.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever until you marry her and she refuses to let you live in ease and comfort as before.

A mighty good New Year resolve would be for every farmer and every townman to raise a garden sufficient to feed his own family if no more. The year just closed was one of the best on this farming section that we have had in many years and all hope and pray for many just as good to follow. However, it will not do to trust altogether to Providence, but do our part with a garden and a variety of farm crops to help. Lay out your land with a view of having something ready for the market all during the season in order to bring in money without having to borrow from the bank. The man who has been the least pressed has been the one who did not plant more than could be worked and who did not put all his eggs in one basket.

In the current issue of Collier's, United States Senator Harry B. Hawes is classified as the leader of the wets in the Senate in an article under the caption, "Hobby Hawes", by "The Gentleman at the Keyhole".

A "man of sudden and tremendous enthusiasms", Hawes is characterized by the writer as "your true amateur, always alive to the possibilities of interest in everything, never settling down to the dull business of knowing everything about one thing and nothing about anything else".

"He has the advantage of good looks", the article continues. "In his younger days he was known as Handsome Harry Hawes. He has the charm which men have who take little thought of themselves, who adventure among enthusiasms, who are generous, who carry along through the years a great deal of the spirit of youth.

"One wonders how, pleasing himself as much as he has, he has been able to get far in politics. Nevertreless, he, of a class not usually successful in city politics, was once the Democratic boss of St. Louis. He has been, moverover, a Congressman and is now a Senator. He has the capacity of attaching people to him and of making them like him.

"I present this picture of him not because he is a great Senator, but because he, if anyone, is the leader of the wets in the Senate. There has been a great political mortality among the leading wets in the Upper House. Wadsworth was defeated. And Edge, a lesser figure, has become an Ambassador.

"So the most outstanding wet of today is Handsome Harry Hawes of Missouri. The clash between the wets and the drys is not as sharp today as it was a year ago or two years ago, perhaps, because Mr. Hawes has shuffled the prohibition question temporarily over to the Law Enforcement Commission.

"But partly because you do not have the always angry and intolerant Mr. Bruce of Maryland injecting the question into every discussion and partly because you do not have the striking and sensational Jim Reed keeping the issues always on the front page.

"Harry Hawes is not made of the same kind of stuff as those two men. He is not so sharp tongued and uncompromising. He is of too friendly a nature to use words that sting and burn in Senate debates.

"He finds his outlets in his enthusiasms about things that do not bring him into violent clash with his fellows in the Senate.

"But he has one old-fashioned Democratic virtue; his fidelity to the cause of individual freedom. There is enough of the old South about him so that he is himself an individualist. He is against prohibition as an invasion of the individual's rights.

LEGG CONFIDENT OF GRAIN MEN'S ACTION

Washington, December 27.—Confidence that grain traders would refrain from going to extremes to defeat the purposes of the agricultural marketing act was expressed today by Chairman Legge of the Farm Board.

After addressing the annual session of the American Farm Economics Association, he expressed this opinion in response to questions by Edgar B. Brossard, member of the Tariff Commission. Legge had outlined the policies and programs of the board.

"The only thing we are worrying about", said Legge, "is the collective action of our own clients, the farmers. That is going to tell the story, not the question of the opposition of outsiders".

Brossard asked if the board had any plan for meeting competition of private grain dealers. Legge replied the co-operatives had to face that competition and could become equally efficient, as they had control of the volume, providing they had "an equally efficient organization for the actual sales".

NO MORE TRADE DAY ADS

We have just received notice from postal authorities that newspapers containing advertisements of Trades Days are not mailable. If the postal department will now further reduce their price on printed envelopes below the cost of production and prevail on Congress to appropriate funds to cover the deficit, it will utilize another opportunity to embarass the newspapers of the country without serving any useful purpose.

In the advertisements of Trades Days carried in this newspaper, we have studiously avoided any mention of anything bordering on lottery, in order to try to conform to the departments' hairsplitting technicalities. We would like to know who ever attended a circus, a county fair or a carnival, that did not operate games and devices that were bold games of chance, and in which no pretense was made to obscure the element of gambling, yet we have heard of no instance of such concerns being barred from transmitting their publicity through the mails.

We have refrained from publishing accounts of Trades Day activities in Dexter through fear of running counter to some exacting postal rule, yet we read a full account of these same Daxter Trades days in newspapers published in neighboring cities, with impunity.

We realize that there is a reason for this watchful interest being particularly centered on Dexter, and we have very good ideas as to who it is that is provoking the watchfulness. If the manner in which the Trades Days are conducted in Dexter amounted to, or even approached the nature of a gambling or lottery scheme, we would honor the party who is making the complaint, but knowing that such is not the case, we regard his tactics as despicable.—Dexter Messenger.

LAST CALL FOR SOLDIER BONUS: CLAIMS MUST BE FILED BY THURS. MIDNITE

There are about 400,000 men and women in the United States who can get from Uncle Sam—for the mere asking—cash or a bit of paper worth from $1 to about $1600.

But these men and women, who are World War soldiers and sailors, marines and yeomanettes, must speak for it before Thursday midnight, or forever hold their peace.

The adjusted compensation act of 1924 provided for payment of all veterans or their dependents in accordance with the service they gave. It guaranteed a monetary recompense to every man who served more than 60 days at home or in the trenches, and the only proviso it laid down was that requests be made to the branch in which the service was rendered—before January 3, 1930.

This is the time of year to be especially careful of trichinosis. Most cases of this serious disease result from farm slaughtering of pigs and the eating of raw sausage from small, uninspected establishments. Pork and pork products should be thoroughly cooked.

HOWARD MORRISON WITH FEDERAL LAND BANK

His duties will be similar to those of James Moccabee, who has been with this same company for the past several years.

More than 7800 miles of Federal aid roads were built in 1928. In all, 74,783 miles of roads were improved during the year, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In a post-mortem examination of one or two chickens shows that the poultry flock has worms, 2 per cent by weight of finely powdered tobacco dust should be added to the dry mash. The dust should contain at least 1.5 per cent nicotine. This will control roundworms and also, to some extent, cecum worms, and lessen the danger to young chicks and poults next spring.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.
St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

ARTIFICIAL BROODING FOR BIGGER POULTRY PROFITS

A hen can act as foster mother for from 10 to 20 chicks while a small brooder can take care of 100, and one of moderate size can accommodate up to 500 or more. But little more attention is required for a single brooder than for a hen and her tiny family. The fuel cost for brooder operation is negligible in comparison with the labor cost required in caring for an equivalent number of chicks with hens. It is self-evident, therefore, that where profit is the primary requirement, in the handling of large numbers of cheiks, artificial brooding is the onl method worthy of consideration.

Thousands of chicks can be raised successfully by artificial means where dozens would be handled with difficulty if hens were used. This is a fact so well known to professional poultrymen that they would probably question the need of discussing the problem at all. I have found, however, that many to whom the poultry raising is merely incidental to other occupations, are still inclined to mistrust any substitute for the time tested method of nature's own devising.

They are deterred, for the most part, by a belief that artificial brooding is unreliable unless supplemented by constant care. This may have been true some years ago but, today, moderately priced brooders are available which are absolutely dependable to operate, economical, and which require relatively little attention to insure satisfactory results.

Another factor which no doubt keeps many smaller operators from adopting artificial brooding is the multitude of conflicting claims made by the adherents of various methods. This tends to make a really simple matter appear quite complicated. As a matter of fact, there is no one method of outstanding superiority and no single device that is decidedly better than all others.

The thing to be considered first of all is the size of your flock as a whole, and next the size of individual broods which you can handle with the greatest ease. Then, buy as many units as you need, install and operate them according to the manufacturer's instructions. You will find that it is a really simple matter after all and a labor saver of decided value even for comparatively small numbers of chicks.

The principle used in all brooders is the same: some artificial means of furnishing heat as a substitute for the hen's natural body heat. The heating unit may use gas, kerosene, hot water, coal or electricity. Whatever is used, the general arrangement remains the same. The unit is centrally located under a circular metal hood so arranged that the heat is deflected downward from the hood onto the backs of the chicks. Around this hood is usually a slit curtain to partially confine the heat. This unit with hood and curtain is called the hover.

The hover unit is the central feature of any system of artificial brooding. Space is lacking in an article of this kind to discuss the various types of brooders, all of which have their uses. They will be discussed in a late article.

Artificial brooding offers you the opportunity to bring into poultry raising the same sort of mass production methods which make possible the gigantic commercial enterprises of our time. Without such methods, no business can ever progress beyond the "one horse" stage. If you raise chickens only for the needs of your own family, profit is a secondary consideration and the system employed is of no great moment. If, however, you are aiming for profits, you cannot afford to ignore the efficiency of modern devices for artificial brooding.

As a parting word of advice, let me counsel those who hestiate to adopt the modern method of brooding not to regard it as something of brooding not to regard it as something surrounded by mystery or hedged about by difficulties demanding professional skill. Quite the reverse is true, for, while it is true that artificial brooding has its problems, they are much the same as those of natural brooding and no more difficult of solution. There are, moreover, many compensating factors in favor of artificial brooding wrich make it the inescapable choice of all who want to realize the greatest possible profit from their chicken raising whether it is their sole source of income or merely a side issue.

The saddest sight that one could imagine was an 18-year-old mother lying cold in death with twin baby girls lying close to her side. This was Thursday morning and God took the mother and babes to Him on Monday morning last in St. Louis. To look on these forms involuntarily made one make the sign of the cross on which Jesus died that we might be saved. She gave her life to bring forth these babes then God took the babes that they might be with their mother. The bodies were at the Albritton undertaking establishment.

A Ziegfeld Show is coming to Sikeston.

For the first time in the history of this city the Ziegfeld banner will fly above the Malone Theatre when Florenz Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl" will be shown Thursday and Friday.

"Glorifying the American Girl" can truly be called an all-Ziegfeld production. It is built around the typical rise to Ziegfeld stage fame of an ambitious small-town girl who achieves "glorified" fame under the Ziegfeld pennant after many hardships and heart-breaks.

Mary Eaton, herself a young lady who had aspirations to Ziegfeld stardom and who eventually became Ziegfeld's premiere damseuse, has the leading role in the production. Scores of glorified American beauties support Miss Eaton in the lavish spectacle scenes. Helen Morgan, of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat" fame, and Eddie Cantor, inimitable comic of "Kid Boots", and "Whoopee", Ziegfeld stage successes, are cast in the production, appearing in individual skits in a special revue sequence of the picture.

J. B. McEvoy and Millard Webb wrote the story. McEvoy is the author of the story on which Ziegfeld's "Show Girl" was based.

The music and lyrics for "Glorifying the American Girls" were written by Walter Donaldson, Irving Berlin, Dave Stamper and Larry Spier. Revue finals and ballet ensembles were staged by John Harkrider and Ted Shawn.

In all it is a tuneful, danceful comedy-packed extravaganza, glamorously glorified with gorgeous girls—a film in which Ziegfeld out-Ziegfelds Ziegfeld.

TWO FORMER SIKESTONIANS MARRIED THANKSGIVING DAY

Friends of Miss Mildred Christian and Fred Allard were surprised to learn last week Wednesday of the marriage of the couple last Thanksgiving day. The couple arrived in Sikeston Christmas and spent the night at the home of Mrs. Jane Mills, with whom Miss Christian lived for four years while employed in Sikeston.

Details of the wedding are not available at present, but it is generally understood that the ceremony took place at Marian, Ark., the wedding party going to Memphis, Tenn., to spend the night.

Miss Christian enjoyed the friendship of the entire younger set in town. She left to assume a position with the Bell Telephone Company at Jonesboro, Ark., last August.

Mr. Allard was employed in the local highway office for a number of years, and left the city this summer to assume a similar position with the Webster Groves office, where he is employed at present.

The recent bride will remain at Jonesboro until another girl can take over her dutes. The couple hopes to be able to start housekeeping in Webster Groves by March next.

SCHOOL MEETS "NEW FACULTY" MEMBER AT ASSEMBLY

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise complied with the insistent demands of his student body Monday morning to hold a special assembly. Shortly after the students were assembled, Mr. Ellise explained that the meeting was called to order to introduce a "new" faculty member, and immediately called upon Mrs. Lottie Dover Cunningham for a speech.

The students were reminded that Christmas vacation was now over and that teachers should keep in mind the fact that it might require a day or so for the boys and girls to get back into the swing of studying. Exams were also brought to mind by the statement that reviews, thorough in nature, would be on schedule until next Thursday and Friday, the two fatal days.

Attention was directed to the proposed night school for adults. Mr. Ellise pointed out that persons other than students could avail themselves of an opportunity to learn commercial work, typing, shorthand and bookkeeping and perhaps other subjects by attending special classes at night. Those interested are urged to get in touch with him at once so that plans for the school can be perfected.

The year 1930 holds much in store for Sikeston and her citizens if they will get behind the projects. Two of the main things will be the erecting of a municipal power, light and ice plant, and the laying of the concrete slab on Highway 61 direct north of Sikeston to Ancell. The former will soon pay for itself and then be the means of financing other improvements. The latter, if placed on or about the present survey directly north, will give us a concrete connection through the city, both north and south. If the slab is finally placed on the east survey, skirting Sikeston, we never will get a slab built north to it. This should not be forgotten.

During the week, the editor was visited by a representative of a large number of citizens in the hill section of the county asking us to start a paper at Benton to be run on the same plan and as independent as is The Standard. This is mighty fine and The Standard editor will take over the paper already established in that city if they can arrange for the sale of it.

We see by the papers where a Tennessean was fined $10 and was forced to spend a night in jail for hurling a brick at a road hog. The man from Tennessee tooted once, and tooted again. The r. h. would not, did not move. "Slam" came the brick, and broke a windshield. Somehow we feel that justice miscarried. We sometimes feel that an armored car would be the thing to teach a road hog a few rules of common sense driving. Also we would like to have just one full swipe at the nitwit who dodges out of side roads onto boulevards, heavily traveled streets and arterial highways.

"Pay as you go" would be a fine motto for all of us from now on. You would buy less and all merchants would be glad to have your business.

After an improved road has been made, little attention is paid as a rule to the roadside. From the point of view of the driver, the road may be a marvelous piece of work but to the esthetically inclined passenger, the outlook may be quite different. The average highway is lined with jagged cuts, homely banks, tree trunks and refuse of one kind or another. The Vermont Chamber of Commerce has started in upon a campaign to beautify the roads and roadsides and is endeavoring to make it a nation-wide movement. Connecticut sets out rambler roses, woodbine and honeysuckle. Many other states set out trees in large numbers. This, together with the efforts being made to overcome the billboard nuisance, may have the effect of restoring the rural scenery to an acceptable condition.

Well, we have heard it said that Walter Kendall will probably have as competitors for the office of police chief, both J. H. Hayden and Wade Tucker. As it is early in the year and the election not until April there is plenty of time for a dozen more to get the bee in their bonnet. Only $5 for an announcement in this race.

We haven't very much use for the man who makes his living in a town but who constantly buys the things he and his family need from some other town or city. He is nothing but a parasite, feeding off the community but contributing nothing to it. And we can see no difference between the man who buys his clothing, furniture or anything else away from home and the man or firm who sends away for his printing—it is the same principle and the same process exactly.—Democrat Argus.

More than 100 years before the Christian era a form of talking picture with motion originated in China and has continued in popularity to the present day. This is the ancient Chinese shadow play which gave the illusion of talking pictures by having readers to produce voice effects. The scenarios of the shadow plays are still derived from the literary drama of the legitimate stage but they have more appeal to the masses as the worlds are recited in the current vernacular rather than in the highly classic diction of the stage.

SAM GRABER HELD UP IN KENNETT STORE SUN. NIGHT

Kennett, December 27.—Sam Graber, of the local Graber Store Co., had the novel experience Sunday night of being held up in his own store by two armed men. The store owner had returned from Cardwell about 10:25 o'clock and walked to the wrapping counter, where a night lamp is kept burning continuously. He was accosted by the night prowler, who was joined soon after by an assistant. The men did not rob Mr. Graber, nor did they take anything from the store. No arrests have been made.

One serious and 19 minor injuries resulted from the collision of a Pickwick-Greyhound bus at 8:30 o'clock last Saturday morning with Bill Carson's Dodge truck, driven by Walker Bell Chaney on Highway 61, four and one-half miles south of Sikeston. Chaney's truck and the bus were both southbound.

The rear end collision is accounted for by the fact that one of the heaviest fogs recorded in Southeast Missouri blanked out objects even at short distances, and made drivng hazardous. Notice the sacks of sugar on the bus bumper. A tarpaulin originally placed over the load of groceries, finally rested over the crushed roof of the bus.

Passengers in the bus were showered with a deluge of cane sugar and table syrup, which rushed backwards through the shattered windshield.

Chaney was removed to St. Mary's Infirmary, Cairo, Ill., Sunday afternoon, and underwent a major operation the following day. Relatives said Tuesday, that he withstood the operation in good shape, and was fully conscious. He was able to drink a glass of lemonade Tuesday afternoon, the first bit of food since the accident.

BAG LIMITS OF DUCKS, GEESE TO BE CUT IN HALF IN 1930

Washington, December 31.—The bag limit for ducks next year will be 15 and after a hunter kills four geese he will be through for the day.

Secretary Hyde announced today that the changes in Federal regulations would go into effect after the present hunting season and that the possession limit would be reduced to 30 ducks and eight geese. At present the bag limit under Federal law for ducks is 25, and for geese is eight.

An extensive investigation by the Department of Agriculture, which showed that water fowl were not holding their own, was a factor in the decision to reduce the limit.

Blame for the decrease in the number of wild fowl was placed largely upon the elimination of reclamation of former breeding grounds in the Northwest States and Canada.

STROKE IS FATAL TO J. W. MILLER, FARMER

Mrs. Miller and five children survive.

Services were conducted at 1:00 o'clock Sunday at the residence, with Rev. A. C. Rudloff officiating. Interment was made in Dogwood cemetery, 8 miles south of Bertrand. Welsh service.

ELLIS-VINSON

Miss Marie Ellis and William Vinson, both of this city were married at the home of Rev. A. C. Rudloff at 8:30 o'clock, December 23. Mr. Singleton and Miss Norine Ables witnessed the ceremony.

KONJOLA WINS; SUFFERING OF 3 YEARS ENDS!

Stomach Was In Dreadful Condition —Until Konjola Was Tried All Medicines Failed.

MISS BERTHA PARK

"During all the years that I suffered I tried medicines and treatments galore but until I started on Konjola I did not get the slightest benefit", said Miss Bertha Park, 5170 San Francisco avenue, St. Louis. "Three years of suffering from stomach trouble made a wreck of me. For every meal I paid a price in misery. Gas, bloating, heartburn and indigestion pains were sure to follow. I dieted without result, except to lose weight and strength. Constipation did not yield, except temporarily, to the strongest laxatives.

"With the very first bottle of Konjola came the realization that I had found the right medicine. As I continued taking it, my appetite increased, my digestion was restored, and I rapidly gained in strength and weight. Konjola banished all my ills".

Konjola is sold in Sikeston at Derris' Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout htis entire section.

One of the services accorded the road users in Missouri by the State Highway Department is this "puncture subtracter", or road magnet. Sikeston motorists will remember the big yellow truck with its three 900-pound electro magnetic bells which pulled some 15 gallons of nails and bits of iron and steel from Highway 61 between this city and Morley alone. The insert shows the business end of the road ...net with two of the magnetic bells in position for working. Power is generated by a gasoline engine and dynamo carried on the truck body proper. Large photo shows the accumulation of potential punctures by one magnet.

American cheese made on the farm may be paraffined to prevent drying and molding. A convenient way to do this is to heat the paraffin to about 220 degrees F. Roll the cheese in the hot paraffin about 5 or 10 seconds. The cheese is then removed and the top and bottom are dipped. The paraffin must be hot, or it will be too thick to adhere to the cheese.

Poultry need more mineral feed in proportion to their total feed requirements than do most other classes of animals. Mineral feed is best supplied in the form of crushed oyster shells or limestone, which supply the calcium for eggshell formation. The shells or limestone should be kept before the hens all the time. Steamed bone meal, which contains lime and phosphorous, may also be given, usually mixed in with the mash ration.

PROSECUTOR SEEKING MANSLAUGHTER CASE AGAINST DRY PATROL

Buffalo, N. Y., December 27.—The assertion that someone was guilty of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., Christmas night by the three members of the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-2245 was made by District Attorney Guy B. Moore today following upon a City Court inquest in Downey's death. The inquest was adjourned until tomorrow morning at Moore's request.

Moore said the facts, as presented to him, showed the shooting resulted from "culpable negligence".

He asked that the adjournment be made in order that he might examine the statements made by the coast guardsmen Thursday night.

United States Attorney R. H. Templeton, who was prevented by Moore from questioning State witnesses at the hearing, asked that tre men be put on the stand today.

Moore said that might be done if the three would waive immunity of trial for manslaughter. Templeton made no answer and the inquest was adjourned.

Templeton said yesterday he believed the men acted in line of duty. He said they gave Downey, whom they suspected of carrying liquor in his boat, proper warning before they fired on the fleeing craft.

Today's testimony included that of three Buffalo policemen who said they saw two coast guardmen standing near the dock where Downey was lying wounded in his boat.

Moore asked one of the policemen, C. M. Meyers, if the guardmen were making any effort to help and Meyers answered that as far as he could see, they were not.

He said policemen called the ambulance to take Downey to emergency hospital and they, the policemen, bore Downey virtually unconscious, up a ladder from the boat.

Capt. Paul H. Forner of the Coast Guard testified that he had ordered the three men, Orville LaGrant, Randolph H. Thompson and Asa Ennes, to man a boat Christmas afternoon and intercept an elleged rum runner headed toward Buffalo from Canada. Thompson, he said, later reported the shooting to him.

Last night Moore questioned the three guardmen for nearly three hours. The guards agreed, he said, to testify at the inquest. They told him, he said, they thought Downey was attempting to escape with contraband.

TWICE A WEEK SIKESTON STANDARD

DAY BY DAY WITH GOVERNOR PATTERSON

Here is 1930. I find it easier to writer than 1929 and that is something in its favor. It beats all how tempus fugits as the old lady remarked, looking over her spectatcles at nothing in particular. That though, is the way of time. It never stands still, but is forever moving, bearing on those who live on the bosom of its restless tide while others who have dropped by the wayside take no note of its flight.

This should be a better year than the last. It will be, if we have learned from experience and have the virtue to repent of our mistakes committed in the old year, and the energy to atone.

I could wish for our country and its people for the New Year no better wish, that it, and they, should not be led astray by the illusions and delusions which so obscured their sight and changed the temper of their minds, in the year of 1929.

It's dangerous. I might say it is fatal, for any state or any man to be without a God, and the sense of responsibility implied by such a belief, but we have come upon an era when this belief is being assailed, both openly and insidiously, as never before in our country, and we have suffered from it. The restlessness and discontent among so many people that we observe has been largely caused by crowding out from their thoughts those spiritual values, which when lost, can never be replaced. Our age is intensely scientific. No other age has been so dominated by its influence and that influence would be wholly good if science kept always within its sphere and refused to enter paths on which it can shed no light, or to invade the kingdoms of this spirit which it can never invest and make subject to its sway. Science has become too arrogant in its great success. It is not the all sufficient thing in life as it sometimes professes to be, or perhaps it would be fairer and more accurate to say, as some of its misled votaries are vain enough to supose. The true scientific mind does not labor under this hallucination. It is more generally a failing of those who mistake themselves for scientists, or the shallow thinkers who following the scientific train, and imagine their spiritual negations give them some sort of intellectual superiority. They cause a great deal of trouble to others whose mental processes are rather easily confused and who are left helplessly drifting on a sea of uncertainty.

I have never been able to understand the pleasure it gave to proclaim a disbelief in matters involving man's creation and his immortality or attempt to shake the belief of others, leaving them hopeless. I have never known or heard of one of these spiritual iconoclasts who offered anything in the place of what he was trying to destroy or of one who has ever caused a human being to become stronger or better satisfied. What these times and this civilization needs is less doubt and more belief. It needs less the rule of materialism applied to life and its unexpressed desires and meanings and more consciousness of the existence of the soul itself and the verity of its urgings. Less infidelity and more fidelity should be our hope and slogan for 1930.

By that sign we shall conquer, redeem our lost possessions and establish order.—Commercial Appeal.

ask him whom he represents.

You have a right to know if the agent who raps at your door or calls at your office, represents a reliable firm.

Many complaints reach the Better Business Bureau AFTER housewives have had an unsatisfactory experience. Some say that money has been paid on account for an article and that nothing has been received. Others say that merchandise received was of inferior quality or grossly misrepresented.

There are many dependable manfacturers and selling organizations who distribute their product through the use of salesmen who call personally upon the consumer. They sell a worth-while product and are financially respnosible. They welcome investigation.

Their success has been preyed upon by hordes of selling agents many of whom are free lance fakers who are showing a worthless product, or who simply exhibit samples with no intention of doing more than collect a down payment.

It is good practice to demand credentials from agents who visit your home or your office. If the firm or the product is unknown to you, GET THE FACTS from the Better Business Bureau. There is no cost.

Before you buy from strangers—get the facts.

To produce a stippled finish on walls, apply a flat wall paint somewhat thicker than that ordinarily used, and dab the surface, before the paint sets, with a stiff, dry brush held a right angles. A regular stippling brush is best for this purpose. If a mottled finish is wanted, apply wall paint over a ground color of another shade, and while still wet, touch the surface lightly with crinkled wrapping paper loosely held.

KID NEW YEAR GETS QUIET RECEPTION HERE

Boiserous celebrations usually in evidence on New Year's eve, were not in evidence in Sikeston. A few cannon crackers responded on the streets early in the evening, but at midnight the tolling of a single bell and the popping of a handful of firecrackers sufficed as far as outward signs of the reception were concerned.

Whether or not there was the customary tinkle of ice and glasses, and the popping of corks in private homes and at parties, is of course not for publication. So far as we know, prohibition agents made no secial attempts to dry up the city.

A few parties in private homes looked for the 1930 arrival in well-manner watch parties. One Sikeston radio fan reports listening in on four different New Year's parties, Eastern Standard, Central, Rocky Mountain and West Coast time.

Sikeston and Canalou divided a doubleheader basketball bill at the local gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, when the local girls were nosed out in the final frame by a score of 29 to 24, and the Sikeston boys won their contest in the last few seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden flipped a basket to run the Sikeston score to 27. Canalou left the field with 26 points.

Both games were fast and rougher than is necessary for good basketball playing. Referee Stallings and Umpire Bridges called 34 fouls in the girls' contest, and 38 in the boys' game—enough at any event to have permitted either team to win the game had each free throw been made. In the girls' game the locals trailed throughout the half closing the second frame with the score 15 to 9 against Sikeston. They rallied in the third quarter, however, and forged ahead with a one-point lead at the close of the period. The fourth frame went nip and tuck with the score tied 19-19, 21-21 and 23-23. However, McLaurin and Wright, forwards for Canalou, managed to toss in two baskets, while the locals found the hoop for only one free throw. Despite the last minute excitement and the belated rally, the locals dropped the game 29-24.

Both games were exhibition games and will not affect standings of teams in their respective conferences. In the girls' game, players had to be substituted constantly until in the fourth quarter with Haywood disqualified on fouls, the Canalou coach found his reserve exhausted. The game was continued, however, with Haywood, guard, in the lineup.

The boys' game gave promise at the start of being a real battle. Fast passing, good floor work, and occasional flashy shots marked the contest. In the first quarter, Sikeston held a one-point lead for a few minutes, but the score at the close of the frame stood 8-8. Canalou managed to squeeze over a one-point margin in the second half and the score stood 16-15 against the locals at the close of the second period.

The locals came back to start the last half showing a little better brand of basketball, and succeeded in boosting their standing to 23 points, while Canalou flipped two baskets for a total of 20 points.

The slight lead was short lived, however, and the game waxed exceedingly warm in the closing period with the home boys holding their lead of one point for the first few seconds only. Shroat, forward for Canalou, placed a beautiful shot from the side court and his team took the lead which was maintained until the last 20 seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden registered a perfect shot to win the contest 27 to 26.

NEGRO CAUGHT MAKING MOONSHINE IS JAILED

New Madrid, January 1.—Pat Burrow, negro of Canalou, was caught making moonshine by Deputies Harris and Wilkins early Saturday morning. Burrow's still was destroyed and Monday he entered a plea of guilty before Peter Smith and was fined $200 and costs. Unable to meet this requirement, Burrow is staying it out in jail.

Odell Daughtery of New Madrid, negro boy, charged with burglary and larceny was arrested and placed in jail Saturday night, after he broke into a house and stole a suit of clothes and sold same. He entered a plea of guilt before Peter Smith and was bound over for Circuit Court, Monday.

William Moore of St. Louis, was returned Friday to this city and placed in jail on a charge of forging several checks in Portageville. Moore readily admitted his guilt and was bound over for Circuit Court. Moore was previously a resident of Portageville and a letter betrayed his location and consequently led to his arrest by St. Louis officers, who turned the prisoner over to Sheriff Stanley.

T. A. Watkins of Risco was lodged in jail Monday night on a charge of disposing of mortgaged property and unable to fill bond will remain until his preliminary, which will be held January 10.

Noll Lankford and Joe Brown of Essex were arrested for being drunk and disorderly, near Morehouse Monday and plead guilty, paying a fine of $1.00 and costs.

COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY NITE

The City Council will hold its regular monthly meeting next Monday night, January 6. "Nothing but routine business is slated to come before the group", acording to P. H. Stevenson, City Clerk.

FIRST NIGHT SCHOOL CLASS TO ENROLL FRIDAY AT 7:15

The first night school class in commercial work will be enrolled this coming Friday night at 7:15 o'clock according to Supt. Roy V. Ellise, who has had the class under consideration for some time.

Miss Sarah Wilson, teacher of commercial work at the High School, will be in charge of the work. Prospective students will meet in the commercial department rooms. high school building, Friday night to talk over their individual problems and to enroll in one or more of the courses offered.

This idea is more or less an experiment, said Mr. Ellise in discussing the proposition. We plan to offer a nine-week course holding classes three nights each week from 7 until 8 and and from 8 to 9 o'clock. It represents our own interpretation of the now popular "short course" idea in higher education as applied to commercial courses. Eventually, the local school hopes to interest other old grads and persons out of school who have possibly been denied an opportunity to study certain subjects while in school, in this night school scheme. The entrance fee will be nominal, "just enough to pay expenses", according to school authorities.

MALONE TRIAL SET FOR NEXT TUESDAY AT POTOSI

The trial of John R. Malone, charged with having killed Arthur Marshall in a midnight restaurant brawl, will be held next Tuesday, January 7 before Judge E. M. Deering of Potosi, Washington County.

The case of Everett Dye, ex-sheriff of this county, is also set for that day.

Clay Hunter of New Madrid was a Sikeston business visitor, Tuesday.

Mrs. A. C. Rudloff is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. C. Hall, at Senath this week.

An idea originating in the local Division 10 Highway office to stop auto and wagon collisions at night, may ultimately be adopted in the State highway safety campaign.

The idea is simplicity itself. White objects usually loom up clearly in the lights of ordinary motor cars at night, and farmers are asked and urged to either paint or whitewash endgates and back axels of their farm wagons.

Anyone who has driven at night over some of the detours south of town last year, will remember a certain tree located in the center of the road.

Mr. Tree was made to stand out clearely by making him wear a whitewashed board.

Highway officials hope that farmers will at least try out this simple safety first idea of traveling on highways at night with wagons and teams.

NAT'L. COTTON CO-OP. PLANS RECEIVE OK

Washington, December 31.—The subcommittee on organization of the $30,000,000 national cotton co-operative finished its work today and the charter and by-laws were approved by the Federal Farm Board.

S. L. Morley of Oklahoma City, Okla., chairman of the subcommittee, said he would call a meeting of the national organization group, to be held at the offices of the Farm Board on January 9. At this meeting the documents prepared and tentatively aproved will be submitted for final action.

On a basis of present expectations the new corporation will immediately include as member stockholders the State Cotton Co-Operative Associations of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi (short staple), Tennessee, Arkansas, Lousana, Missouri, Oklahoma Texas, Arizona and California, representing an immediate marketing size of approximately 1,000,000 bales of cotton.

Mrs. Sam Gossett and friends of Delta, visited here Saturday.

TWO NEW ARRIVALS ALMOST HAVE DISTINCTION OF BEING "NEW YEAR" BABIES

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schaefer on December 29, and Thurman Wright, who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wright on December 31, are already one-year-old—or at least they can point out that they were born last year.

NEW YEAR'S HOP MONDAY NIGHT IS SUCCESSFUL

The New Year's dance, sponsored by the American Legion at the new Armory, was attended by about 250 persons, who danced to music furnished by Roly Fenton's Paradise Garden orchestra. A total of 138 tickets was sold.

Silas Hall on Route 3 out of Matthews called to see us Tuesday. He reports Mrs. Hall as being a very sick woman.

Judge I. R. Kelso of Cape Girardeau, St. Louis and other points, was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday and stopped in The Standard office long enough to wish us a happy new year.

FULLER COMPANY, ENGINEERS, FINISH DISTRIBUTING SYSTEM ON MONDAY

Field work in the light and power survey started last week by the Fuller Engineering Company of St. Louis, was brought to a close Monday by C. D. Calkins, company representative. He was assisted last week by H. A. Fuller.

The data secured here will be turned over to workers in the St. Louis office for final tabulation. This survey of actual requirements for a distribution system and power plant in Sikeston was officially Okd. by a special Council meeting, and the work of bringing down to date the survey made three years ago was underway within a few days.

The Fuller Company will now complete their estimate, after which Sikeston voters will decide for themselves whether or not they want to own their light and power plant. It will be necessary to vote bonds to cover the cost of a distribution system, which includes outside poles, wires, transformers, etc. Machinery concerns have offered to finance the entire cost of the actual plant if the city will finance the cost of the distribution system.

Leaders in the movement for a municipally owned plant point out that the management of the plant, if one is to be built here, will be left to a non-partisan board. It is conceded that such management must never become a "political football".

GIRL, 18, DIES GIVING BIRTH TO TWINS, MONDAY

Mrs. Carl J. Norvall, formerly of Morehouse and since 1927 of St. Louis, died in St. Mary's Hospital, that city, Monday night after giving birth to twins, both of who preceeded their mother in death. The trio was laid to rest in one casket which was shipped to the Albritton Undertaking Parlor on the Wednesday morning train.

Funeral services were conducted at the McLaughlin Undertaking establishment in St. Louis Tuesday night. Interment was made Thursday at 1:30 o'clock in Dogwood Cemetery.

Mr. Norvoll, 19 years old, is employed at the Eden Publishing Company in St. Louis, having moved to that city four years ago. His wife and her step-father and mother, J. W. O'Neal, also moved to the city some three years ago.

One brother, Louis Showan, a sister, Lovane Lavender, her father, W. M. Showan and her mother, Mrs. Dora O'Neal, survive.

The evening was spent in playing games, roasting weiners and marshmallows. At 11 o'clock, a course of dainty sandwiches was served, and at 12:30 with the new year safely started on its course, the party broke up.

CITIES SERVICE CO. LEASE SENSENBAUGHS

Arrangements were completed this week between Sensenbaugh Brothers Service Station and O. M. "Ichy" Arthur, whereby the Service Station will hereafter handle the full line of Cities Service products exclusively. New pumps and eqiupment were installed Wednesday of this week, making the largest service station in Sikeston and Southeast Missouri as a unit in the Cities Service organization.

The regular line of commercial Koolmotor high test anti-knock gas and the full line of oils and greases are being stocked.

According to R. E. Marsh, district supervisor and Ichy Arthur, sales representative for the company, stated that this policy of obtaining new leases was in line with the expansion program outlined for 1930 by the Cities Service Oil Company.

The parent station in Sikeston leased by E. E. Arthur is not affected by new arrangement with Sensenbaughs and will continue in business at the corner of Center and Kingshighway.

Cities Service has long been established in the North and East, and embarked two years ago on a South and West expansion program, which in 1930 calls for the expenditure of $150,000,000. One novel feature of this program lies in the fact that uniformly constructed service stations are to be constructed in new territory developed by the company.

JOHN WM. MILLER

John William Miller was born February 11, 1872 in East Prairie. He lived in East Prairie and vicinity until two years ago when he moved to Scott County. He departed this life December 27, 1929.

On March 14, 1895, he was married to Miss Mary Tompkins of East Prairie. To this union there were born eight children, three of which have preceded him in death.

Mr. Miller was for twenty-two years, a member of the Brotherhood of American Yeowman. He is also a member of one of the oldest families of Mississippi County. He was a devoted father and husband. It is said by his friends that he never shirked a duty.

Although he never belonged to any church, it is said that he showed a change in his life before his going away. He told a friend that he never lay down to sleep at night with first talking with his God, in prayer.

He leaves to mourn his going, a devoted companion, Mrs. Mary Miller, five children, Bryan, Lucian, Violet, Blach and George and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral was conudcted by Rev. A. C. Rudloff, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The Army Gains a Recruit

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bean of 4121 Harriet avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn., are the proud parents of a baby girl born December 19. If the army ever comes to the point of considering girls as possible members the little Miss Bean will certainly belong. Her father is a member of the U. S. A. 3rd Inf. at Fort Snelling, and a member of Co. H.

George says there is no place like the Army, good eats, and good beds are furnished, and he has a house to himself. Mr. Bean has been in the army for one and a half years.

It looks as though the enforcement of the 18th Amendment is closely drawing to a civil war. First one and the other of the wets and drys are shot and the war grows more bitter. Some of the drys have murdered innocent people in cold blood and nothing done. Then we read where some wet has killed a dry officer and we feel like that is all right and only balances the thing. This is the wrong feeling, of course, but it creeps in just the same. To kill a man, and deliberately do it, as has most of the dry officers, for the matter of attempting to stop people from drinking liquor or beer, and let the foreign gangsters terrorize nearly every city in the country and the Federal Government spend $30,000,000 for one and nothing for the other, makes disrespectors of the 18th Amendment the laws, and all. We would hate to be classed with the wet violators and we are certainly not for the dry killers as they have been operating. Give us some relief in a modification of some sort or we will all be racketeers, anarchists, socialists or worse.

This is a mighty good time for every married man who does not own a home to now make the start. It takes some money to secure a lot, but after that there are any number of Building & Loan Asociations who will furnish the rest. The amount now paid for rent will about pay the monthly dues and in the course of time you will own a home of your own. Look into the matter.

While the Administration at Washington has been telling of the wonderful prosperity in the land, they remind us much of the boy who whistles while passing a grave yard to keep up his courage. If there was real prosperity why have Big Business and Big Corporations tell us how many millions of dollars they expect to start to spend in 1930. We are just a little skeptical.

Beauty is but skin deep and ugly is to the bone, so said a chap who attended the dance the other evening, though he said if she was of good form he didn't mind gazing at her even if he couldn't see the bone.

The year 1929 is a closed incident except for the joys and sorrows it brought to families which will long be remembered. The New Year just beginning will be much what we make it. Let's make the most of it. Let's try to shed a little more sunshine and forget the frowns that fight to come to the fore. It doesn't always take money to make sunshine. Kind words backed by sincerity is the greatest of all. Stand ready to encourage with word and deed and forget as far as possible the unpleasant things of the past.

Of the reminders received by the editor during the holidays, none were more appreciated than the copy of "Robert Devoy", by Frank Sosey of the Palmyra Spectator, which was a true story of the Palmyra Massacre of civilians by Gen'l. McNeil, a Federal officer, during the Civil War.

While other branches of industry are seeking aid from the Government through the Farm Bureau Board or tariff laws, we fail to note where country editors are keeping a lobby to look after their interests in Washington, or asking for anything beyond the wood and pumpkins due on subscriptions.

Another resolve The Standard is making is to collect in full some of the accounts owing—or have them collected. It takes money to pay doctors, the hands, put up-to-date machinery in the shop, buy food, fuel and clothes, so govern yourself accordingly if you owe this shop.

A mighty good New Year resolve would be for every farmer and every townman to raise a garden sufficient to feed his own family if no more. The year just closed was one of the best on this farming section that we have had in many years and all hope and pray for many just as good to follow. However, it will not do to trust altogether to Providence, but do our part with a garden and a variety of farm crops to help. Lay out your land with a view of having something ready for the market all during the season in order to bring in money without having to borrow from the bank. HAWES RECOGNIZED AS SENATE'S WET LEADER IN ARTICLE

In the current issue of Collier's, United States Senator Harry B. Hawes is classified as the leader of the wets in the Senate in an article under the caption, "Hobby Hawes", by "The Gentleman at the Keyhole".

A "man of sudden and tremendous enthusiasms", Hawes is characterized by the writer as "your true amateur, always alive to the possibilities of interest in everything, never settling down to the dull business of knowing everything about one thing and nothing about anything else".

"He has the advantage of good looks", the article continues. "In his younger days he was known as Handsome Harry Hawes. He has the charm which men have who take little thought of themselves, who adventure among enthusiasms, who are generous, who carry along through the years a great deal of the spirit of youth.

"One wonders how, pleasing himself as much as he has, he has been able to get far in politics. Nevertreless, he, of a class not usually successful in city politics, was once the Democratic boss of St. Louis. He has been, moverover, a Congressman and is now a Senator. He has the capacity of attaching people to him and of making them like him.

"I present this picture of him not because he is a great Senator, but because he, if anyone, is the leader of the wets in the Senate. There has been a great political mortality among the leading wets in the Upper House. Wadsworth was defeated. And Edge, a lesser figure, has become an Ambassador.

"So the most outstanding wet of today is Handsome Harry Hawes of Missouri. The clash between the wets and the drys is not as sharp today as it was a year ago or two years ago, perhaps, because Mr. Hawes has shuffled the prohibition question temporarily over to the Law Enforcement Commission.

"But partly because you do not have the always angry and intolerant Mr. Bruce of Maryland injecting the question into every discussion and partly because you do not have the striking and sensational Jim Reed keeping the issues always on the front page.

"Harry Hawes is not made of the same kind of stuff as those two men. He is not so sharp tongued and uncompromising. He is of too friendly a nature to use words that sting and burn in Senate debates.

"He finds his outlets in his enthusiasms about things that do not bring him into violent clash with his fellows in the Senate.

"But he has one old-fashioned Democratic virtue; his fidelity to the cause of individual freedom. There is enough of the old South about him so that he is himself an individualist. He is against prohibition as an invasion of the individual's rights.

LEGG CONFIDENT OF GRAIN MEN'S ACTION

Washington, December 27.—Confidence that grain traders would refrain from going to extremes to defeat the purposes of the agricultural marketing act was expressed today by Chairman Legge of the Farm Board.

After addressing the annual session of the American Farm Economics Association, he expressed this opinion in response to questions by Edgar B. Brossard, member of the Tariff Commission. Legge had outlined the policies and programs of the board.

"The only thing we are worrying about", said Legge, "is the collective action of our own clients, the farmers. That is going to tell the story, not the question of the opposition of outsiders".

Brossard asked if the board had any plan for meeting competition of private grain dealers. Legge replied the co-operatives had to face that competition and could become equally efficient, as they had control of the volume, providing they had "an equally efficient organization for the actual sales".

NO MORE TRADE DAY ADS

We have just received notice from postal authorities that newspapers containing advertisements of Trades Days are not mailable. If the postal department will now further reduce their price on printed envelopes below the cost of production and prevail on Congress to appropriate funds to cover the deficit, it will utilize another opportunity to embarass the newspapers of the country without serving any useful purpose.

In the advertisements of Trades Days carried in this newspaper, we have studiously avoided any mention of anything bordering on lottery, in order to try to conform to the departments' hairsplitting technicalities. We would like to know who ever attended a circus, a county fair or a carnival, that did not operate games and devices that were bold games of chance, and in which no pretense was made to obscure the element of gambling, yet we have heard of no instance of such concerns being barred from transmitting their publicity through the mails.

We have refrained from publishing accounts of Trades Day activities in Dexter through fear of running counter to some exacting postal rule, yet we read a full account of these same Daxter Trades days in newspapers published in neighboring cities, with impunity.

We realize that there is a reason for this watchful interest being particularly centered on Dexter, and we have very good ideas as to who it is that is provoking the watchfulness. If the manner in which the Trades Days are conducted in Dexter amounted to, or even approached the nature of a gambling or lottery scheme, we would honor the party who is making the complaint, but knowing that such is not the case, we regard his tactics as despicable.—Dexter Messenger.

LAST CALL FOR SOLDIER BONUS: CLAIMS MUST BE FILED BY THURS. MIDNITE

There are about 400,000 men and women in the United States who can get from Uncle Sam—for the mere asking—cash or a bit of paper worth from $1 to about $1600.

But these men and women, who are World War soldiers and sailors, marines and yeomanettes, must speak for it before Thursday midnight, or forever hold their peace.

The adjusted compensation act of 1924 provided for payment of all veterans or their dependents in accordance with the service they gave. It guaranteed a monetary recompense to every man who served more than 60 days at home or in the trenches, and the only proviso it laid down was that requests be made to the branch in which the service was rendered—before January 3, 1930.

This is the time of year to be especially careful of trichinosis. Most cases of this serious disease result from farm slaughtering of pigs and the eating of raw sausage from small, uninspected establishments. Pork and pork products should be thoroughly cooked.

In a post-mortem examination of one or two chickens shows that the poultry flock has worms, 2 per cent by weight of finely powdered tobacco dust should be added to the dry mash. The dust should contain at least 1.5 per cent nicotine. This will control roundworms and also, to some extent, cecum worms, and lessen the danger to young chicks and poults next spring.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.
St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

ARTIFICIAL BROODING FOR BIGGER POULTRY PROFITS

A hen can act as foster mother for from 10 to 20 chicks while a small brooder can take care of 100, and one of moderate size can accommodate up to 500 or more. But little more attention is required for a single brooder than for a hen and her tiny family. The fuel cost for brooder operation is negligible in comparison with the labor cost required in caring for an equivalent number of chicks with hens. It is self-evident, therefore, that where profit is the primary requirement, in the handling of large numbers of chciks, artificial brooding is the onl method worthy of consideration.

Thousands of chicks can be raised successfully by artificial means where dozens would be handled with difficulty if hens were used. This is a fact so well known to professional poultrymen that they would probably question the need of discussing the problem at all. I have found, however, that many to whom the poultry raising is merely incidental to other occupations, are still inclined to mistrust any substitute for the time tested method of nature's own devising.

They are deterred, for the most part, by a belief that artificial brooding is unreliable unless supplemented by constant care. This may have been true some years ago but, today, moderately priced brooders are available which are absolutely dependable to operate, economical, and which require relatively little attention to insure satisfactory results.

Another factor which no doubt keeps many smaller operators from adopting artificial brooding is the multitude of conflicting claims made by the adherents of various methods. This tends to make a really simple matter appear quite complicated. As a matter of fact, there is no one method of outstanding superiority and no single device that is decidedly better than all others.

The thing to be considered first of all is the size of your flock as a whole, and next the size of individual broods which you can handle with the greatest ease. Then, buy as many units as you need, install and operate them according to the manufacturer's instructions. You will find that it is a really simple matter after all and a labor saver of decided value even for comparatively small numbers of chicks.

The principle used in all brooders is the same: some artificial means of furnishing heat as a substitute for the hen's natural body heat. The heating unit may use gas, kerosene, hot water, coal or electricity. Whatever is used, the general arrangement remains the same. The unit is centrally located under a circular metal hood so arranged that the heat is deflected downward from the hood onto the backs of the chicks. Around this hood is usually a slit curtain to partially confine the heat. This unit with hood and curtain is called the hover.

The hover unit is the central feature of any system of artificial brooding. Space is lacking in an article of this kind to discuss the various types of brooders, all of which have their uses. They will be discussed in a late article.

Artificial brooding offers you the opportunity to bring into poultry raising the same sort of mass production methods which make possible the gigantic commercial enterprises of our time. Without such methods, no business can ever progress beyond the "one horse" stage. If you raise chickens only for the needs of your own family, profit is a secondary consideration and the system employed is of no great moment. If, however, you are aiming for profits, you cannot afford to ignore the efficiency of modern devices for artificial brooding.

As a parting word of advice, let me counsel those who hestiate to adopt the modern method of brooding not to regard it as something of brooding not to regard it as something surrounded by mystery or hedged about by difficulties demanding professional skill. Quite the reverse is true, for, while it is true that artificial brooding has its problems, they are much the same as those of natural brooding and no more difficult of solution. There are, moreover, many compensating factors in favor of artificial brooding wrich make it the inescapable choice of all who want to realize the greatest possible profit from their chicken raising whether it is their sole source of income or merely a side issue.

SCHOOL MEETS "NEW FACULTY" MEMBER AT ASSEMBLY

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise complied with the insistent demands of his student body Monday morning to hold a special assembly. Shortly after the students were assembled, Mr. Ellise explained that the meeting was called to order to introduce a "new" faculty member, and immediately called upon Mrs. Lottie Dover Cunningham for a speech.

The students were reminded that Christmas vacation was now over and that teachers should keep in mind the fact that it might require a day or so for the boys and girls to get back into the swing of studying. Exams were also brought to mind by the statement that reviews, thorough in nature, would be on schedule until next Thursday and Friday, the two fatal days.

Attention was directed to the proposed night school for adults. Mr. Ellise pointed out that persons other than students could avail themselves of an opportunity to learn commercial work, typing, shorthand and bookkeeping and perhaps other subjects by attending special classes at night. Those interested are urged to get in touch with him at once so that plans for the school can be perfected.

The year 1930 holds much in store for Sikeston and her citizens if they will get behind the projects. Two of the main things will be the erecting of a municipal, power, light and ice plant, and the laying of the concrete slab on Highway 61 direct north of Sikeston to Ancell. The former will soon pay for itself and then be the means of financing other improvements. The latter, if placed on or about the present survey directly north, will give us a concrete connection through the city, both north and south. If the slab is finally placed on the east survey, skirting Sikeston, we never will get a slab built north to it. This should not be forgotten.

The r. h. would not, did not move. "Slam" came the brick, and broke a windshield. Somehow we feel that justice miscarried. We sometimes feel that an armored car would be the thing to teach a road hog a few rules of common sense driving. Also we would like to have just one full swipe at the nitwit who dodges out of side roads onto boulevards, heavily traveled streets and arterial highways.

After an improved road has been made, little attention is paid as a rule to the roadside. From the point of view of the driver, the road may be a marvelous piece of work but to the esthetically inclined passenger, the outlook may be quite different. The average highway is lined with jagged cuts, homely banks, tree trunks and refuse of one kind or another. The Vermont Chamber of Commerce has started in upon a campaign to beautify the roads and roadsides and is endeavoring to make it a nation-wide movement. Connecticut sets out rambler roses, woodbine and honeysuckle. Many other states set out trees in large numbers. This, together with the efforts being made to overcome the billboard nuisance, may have the effect of restoring the rural scenery to an acceptable condition.

We haven't very much use for the man who makes his living in a town but who constantly buys the things he and his family need from some other town or city. He is nothing but a parasite, feeding off the community but contributing nothing to it. And we can see no difference between the man who buys his clothing, furniture or anything else away from home and the man or firm who sends away for his printing—it is the same principle and the same process exactly.—Democrat Argus.

More than 100 years before the Christian era a form of talking picture with motion originated in China and has continued in popularity to the present day. This is the ancient Chinese shadow play which gave the illusion of talking pictures by having readers to produce voice effects. The scenarios of the shadow plays are still derived from the literary drama of the legitimate stage but they have more appeal to the masses as the worlds are recited in the current vernacular rather than in the highly classic diction of the stage.

Kennett, December 27.—Sam Graber, of the local Graber Store Co., had the novel experience Sunday night of being held up in his own store by two armed men. He was accosted by the night prowler, who was joined soon after by an assistant. The men did not rob Mr. Graber, nor did they take anything from the store. No arrests have been made.

One serious and 19 minor injuries resulted from the collision of a Pickwick-Greyhound bus at 8:30 o'clock last Saturday morning with Bill Carson's Dodge truck, driven by Walker Bell Chaney on Highway 61, four and one-half miles south of Sikeston. Chaney's truck and the bus were both southbound.

The rear end collision is accounted for by the fact that one of the heaviest fogs recorded in Southeast Missouri blanked out objects even at short distances, and made drivng hazardous. Notice the sacks of sugar on the bus bumper. A tarpaulin originally placed over the load of groceries, finally rested over the crushed roof of the bus.

Passengers in the bus were showered with a deluge of cane sugar and table syrup, which rushed backwards through the shattered windshield.

Chaney was removed to St. Mary's Infirmary, Cairo, Ill., Sunday afternoon, and underwent a major operation the following day. Relatives said Tuesday, that he withstood the operation in good shape, and was fully conscious. He was able to drink a glass of lemonade Tuesday afternoon, the first bit of food since the accident.

BAG LIMITS OF DUCKS, GEESE TO BE CUT IN HALF IN 1930

Washington, December 31.—The bag limit for ducks next year will be 15 and after a hunter kills four geese he will be through for the day.

Secretary Hyde announced today that the changes in Federal regulations would go into effect after the present hunting season and that the possession limit would be reduced to 30 ducks and eight geese. At present the bag limit under Federal law for ducks is 25, and for geese is eight.

An extensive investigation by the Department of Agriculture, which showed that water fowl were not holding their own, was a factor in the decision to reduce the limit.

Blame for the decrease in the number of wild fowl was placed largely upon the elimination of reclamation of former breeding grounds in the Northwest States and Canada.

One of the services accorded the road users in Missouri by the State Highway Department is this "puncture subtracter", or road magnet. Sikeston motorists will remember the big yellow truck with its three 900-pound electro magnetic bells which pulled some 15 gallons of nails and bits of iron and steel from Highway 61 between this city and Morley alone. The insert shows the business end of the road magnet with two of the magnetic bells in position for working. Power is generated by a gasoline engine and dynamo carried on the truck body proper. Large photo shows the accumulation of potential punctures by one magnet.

American cheese made on the farm may be paraffined to prevent drying and molding. A convenient way to do this is to heat the paraffin to about 220 degrees F. Roll the cheese in the hot paraffin about 5 or 10 seconds. The cheese is then removed and the top and bottom are dipped. The paraffin must be hot, or it will be too thick to adhere to the cheese.

Poultry need more mineral feed in proportion to their total feed requirements than do most other classes of animals. Mineral feed is best supplied in the form of crushed oyster shells or limestone, which supply the calcium for eggshell formation. The shells or limestone should be kept before the hens all the time. PROSECUTOR SEEKING MANSLAUGHTER CASE AGAINST DRY PATROL

Buffalo, N. Y., December 27.—The assertion that someone was guilty of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., Christmas night by the three members of the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-2245 was made by District Attorney Guy B. Moore today following upon a City Court inquest in Downey's death. The inquest was adjourned until tomorrow morning at Moore's request.

Moore said the facts, as presented to him, showed the shooting resulted from "culpable negligence".

He asked that the adjournment be made in order that he might examine the statements made by the coast guardsmen Thursday night.

United States Attorney R. H. Templeton, who was prevented by Moore from questioning State witnesses at the hearing, asked that tre men be put on the stand today.

Moore said that might be done if the three would waive immunity of trial for manslaughter. Templeton made no answer and the inquest was adjourned.

Templeton said yesterday he believed the men acted in line of duty. He said they gave Downey, whom they suspected of carrying liquor in his boat, proper warning before they fired on the fleeing craft.

Today's testimony included that of three Buffalo policemen who said they saw two coast guardmen standing near the dock where Downey was lying wounded in his boat.

Moore asked one of the policemen, C. M. Meyers, if the guardmen were making any effort to help and Meyers answered that as far as he could see, they were not.

He said policemen called the ambulance to take Downey to emergency hospital and they, the policemen, bore Downey virtually unconscious up a ladder from the boat.

Capt. Paul H. Forner of the Coast Guard testified that he had ordered the three men, Orville LaGrant, Randolph H. Thompson and Asa Ennes, to man a boat Christmas afternoon and intercept an elleged rum runner headed toward Buffalo from Canada. Thompson, he said, later reported the shooting to him.

Last night Moore questioned the three guardmen for nearly three hours. The guards agreed, he said, to testify at the inquest. They told him, he said, they thought Downey was attempting to escape with contraband.

TWICE A WEEK SIKESTON STANDARD

DAY BY DAY WITH GOVERNOR PATTERSON

Here is 1930. I find it easier to writer than 1929 and that is something in its favor. It beats all how tempus fugits as the old lady remarked, looking over her spectatcles at nothing in particular. That though, is the way of time. It never stands still, but is forever moving, bearing on those who live on the bosom of its restless tide while others who have dropped by the wayside take no note of its flight.

This should be a better year than the last. It will be, if we have learned from experience and have the virtue to repent of our mistakes committed in the old year, and the energy to atone.

I could wish for our country and its people for the New Year no better wish, that it, and they, should not be led astray by the illusions and delusions which so obscured their sight and changed the temper of their minds, in the year of 1929.

It's dangerous. I might say it is fatal, for any state or any man to be without a God, and the sense of responsibility implied by such a belief, but we have come upon an era when this belief is being assailed, both openly and insidiously, as never before in our country, and we have suffered from it. The restlessness and discontent among so many people that we observe has been largely caused by crowding out from their thoughts those spiritual values, which when lost, can never be replaced. Our age is intensely scientific. No other age has been so dominated by its influence and that influence would be wholly good if science kept always within its sphere and refused to enter paths on which it can shed no light, or to invade the kingdoms of this spirit which it can never invest and make subject to its sway. Science has become too arrogant in its great success. It is not the all sufficient thing in life as it sometimes professes to be, or perhaps it would be fairer and more accurate to say, as some of its misled votaries are vain enough to supose. The true scientific mind does not labor under this hallucination. It is more generally a failing of those who mistake themselves for scientists, or the shallow thinkers who following the scientific train, and imagine their spiritual negations give them some sort of intellectual superiority. They cause a great deal of trouble to others whose mental processes are rather easily confused and who are left helplessly drifting on a sea of uncertainty.

I have never been able to understand the pleasure it gave to proclaim a disbelief in matters involving man's creation and his immortality or attempt to shake the belief of others, leaving them hopeless. I have never known or heard of one of these spiritual iconoclasts who offered anything in the place of what he was trying to destroy or of one who has ever caused a human being to become stronger or better satisfied. What these times and this civilization needs is less doubt and more belief. It needs less the rule of materialism applied to life and its unexpressed desires and meanings and more consciousness of the existence of the soul itself and the verity of its urgings. Less infidelity and more fidelity should be our hope and slogan for 1930.

By that sign we shall conquer, redeem our lost possessions and establish order.—Commercial Appeal.

ask him whom he represents.

You have a right to know if the agent who raps at your door or calls at your office, represents a reliable firm.

Many complaints reach the Better Business Bureau AFTER housewives have had an unsatisfactory experience. Some say that money has been paid on account for an article and that nothing has been received. Others say that merchandise received was of inferior quality or grossly misrepresented.

There are many dependable manfacturers and selling organizations who distribute their product through the use of salesmen who call personally upon the consumer. They sell a worth-while product and are financially respnosible. They welcome investigation.

Their success has been preyed upon by hordes of selling agents many of whom are free lance fakers who are showing a worthless product, or who simply exhibit samples with no intention of doing more than collect a down payment.

It is good practice to demand credentials from agents who visit your home or your office. If the firm or the product is unknown to you, GET THE FACTS from the Better Business Bureau. There is no cost.

Before you buy from strangers—get the facts.

To produce a stippled finish on walls, apply a flat wall paint somewhat thicker than that ordinarily used, and dab the surface, before the paint sets, with a stiff, dry brush held a right angles. A regular stippling brush is best for this purpose. If a mottled finish is wanted, apply wall paint over a ground color of another shade, and while still wet, touch the surface lightly with crinkled wrapping paper loosely held.

KID NEW YEAR GETS QUIET RECEPTION HERE

Boiserous celebrations usually in evidence on New Year's eve, were not in evidence in Sikeston. A few cannon crackers responded on the streets early in the evening, but at midnight the tolling of a single bell and the popping of a handful of firecrackers sufficed as far as outward signs of the reception were concerned.

Whether or not there was the customary tinkle of ice and glasses, and the popping of corks in private homes and at parties, is of course not for publication. So far as we know, prohibition agents made no secial attempts to dry up the city.

A few parties in private homes looked for the 1930 arrival in well-manner watch parties. One Sikeston radio fan reports listening in on four different New Year's parties, Eastern Standard, Central, Rocky Mountain and West Coast time.

Sikeston and Canalou divided a doubleheader basketball bill at the local gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, when the local girls were nosed out in the final frame by a score of 29 to 24, and the Sikeston boys won their contest in the last few seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden flipped a basket to run the Sikeston score to 27. Canalou left the field with 26 points.

Both games were fast and rougher than is necessary for good basketball playing. Referee Stallings and Umpire Bridges called 34 fouls in the girls' contest, and 38 in the boys' game—enough at any event to have permitted either team to win the game had each free throw been made. In the girls' game the locals trailed throughout the half closing the second frame with the score 15 to 9 against Sikeston. They rallied in the third quarter, however, and forged ahead with a one-point lead at the close of the period. The fourth frame went nip and tuck with the score tied 19-19, 21-21 and 23-23. However, McLaurin and Wright, forwards for Canalou, managed to toss in two baskets, while the locals found the hoop for only one free throw. Despite the last minute excitement and the belated rally, the locals dropped the game 29-24.

Both games were exhibition games and will not affect standings of teams in their respective conferences. In the girls' game, players had to be substituted constantly until in the fourth quarter with Haywood disqualified on fouls, the Canalou coach found his reserve exhausted. The game was continued, however, with Haywood, guard, in the lineup.

The boys' game gave promise at the start of being a real battle. Fast passing, good floor work, and occasional flashy shots marked the contest. In the first quarter, Sikeston held a one-point lead for a few minutes, but the score at the close of the frame stood 8-8. Canalou managed to squeeze over a one-point margin in the second half and the score stood 16-15 against the locals at the close of the second period.

The locals came back to start the last half showing a little better brand of basketball, and succeeded in boosting their standing to 23 points, while Canalou flipped two baskets for a total of 20 points.

The slight lead was short lived, however, and the game waxed exceedingly warm in the closing period with the home boys holding their lead of one point for the first few seconds only. Shroat, forward for Canalou, placed a beautiful shot from the side court and his team took the lead which was maintained until the last 20 seconds of play, when J. H. Hayden registered a perfect shot to win the contest 27 to 26.

The first night school class in commercial work will be enrolled this coming Friday night at 7:15 o'clock according to Supt. Roy V. Ellise, who has had the class under consideration for some time.

Miss Sarah Wilson, teacher of commercial work at the High School, will be in charge of the work. Prospective students will meet in the commercial department rooms. high school building, Friday night to talk over their individual problems and to enroll in one or more of the courses offered.

This idea is more or less an experiment, said Mr. Ellise in discussing the proposition. We plan to offer a nine-week course holding classes three nights each week from 7 until 8 and and from 8 to 9 o'clock. It represents our own interpretation of the now popular "short course" idea in higher education as applied to commercial courses. Eventually, the local school hopes to interest other old grads and persons out of school who have possibly been denied an opportunity to study certain subjects while in school, in this night school scheme. The entrance fee will be nominal, "just enough to pay expenses", according to school authorities.

MALONE TRIAL SET FOR NEXT TUESDAY AT POTOSI

The trial of John R. Malone, charged with having killed Arthur Marshall in a midnight restaurant brawl will be held next Tuesday, January 7 before Judge E. M. Deering of Potosi, Washington County.

FARMERS URGED TO ADOPT LOW COST ANTI-COLLISION IDEA OF ROAD ENGINEERS

An idea originating in the local Division 10 Highway office to stop auto and wagon collisions at night, may ultimately be adopted in the State highway safety campaign.

The idea is simplicity itself. White objects usually loom up clearly in the lights of ordinary motor cars at night, and farmers are asked and urged to either paint or whitewash endgates and back axels of their farm wagons.

Anyone who has driven at night over some of the detours south of town last year, will remember a certain tree located in the center of the road.

Mr. Tree was made to stand out clearly by making him wear a whitewashed board.

Highway officials hope that farmers will at least try out this simple safety first idea of traveling on highways at night with wagons and teams.

NAT'L. COTTON CO-OP. PLANS RECEIVE OK

Washington, December 31.—The subcommittee on organization of the $30,000,000 national cotton co-operative finished its work today and the charter and by-laws were approved by the Federal Farm Board.

S. L. Morley of Oklahoma City, Okla., chairman of the subcommittee, said he would call a meeting of the national organization group, to be held at the offices of the Farm Board on January 9. At this meeting the documents prepared and tentatively aproved will be submitted for final action.

On a basis of present expectations the new corporation will immediately include as member stockholders the State Cotton Co-Operative Associations of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi (short staple), Tennessee, Arkansas, Lousana, Missouri, Oklahoma Texas, Arizona and California, representing an immediate marketing size of approximately 1,000,000 bales of cotton.

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schaefer on December 29, and Thurman Wright, who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wright on December 31, are already one-year-old—or at least they can point out that they were born last year.

NEW YEAR'S HOP MONDAY NIGHT IS SUCCESSFUL

The New Year's dance, sponsored by the American Legion at the new Armory, was attended by about 250 persons, who danced to music furnished by Roly Fentoh's Paradise Garden orchestra. A total of 138 tickets was sold.

Silas Hall on Route 3 out of Matthews called to see us Tuesday. He reports Mrs. Hall as being a very sick woman.

Field work in the light and power survey started last week by the Fuller Engineering Company of St. Louis, was brought to a close Monday by C. D. Calkins, company representative. He was assisted last week by H. A. Fuller.

The data secured here will be turned over to workers in the St. Louis office for final tabulation. This survay of actual requirements for a distribution system and power plant in Sikeston was officially Okd. by a special Council meeting, and the work of bringing down to date the survey made three years ago was underway within a few days.

The Fuller Company will now complete their estimate, after which Sikeston voters will decide for themselves whether or not they want to own their light and power plant. It will be necessary to vote bonds to cover the cost of a distribution system, which includes outside poles, wires, transformers, etc. Machinery concerns have offered to finance the entire cost of the actual plant if the city will finance the cost of the distribution system.

Leaders in the movement for a municipally owned plant point out that the management of the plant, if one is to be built here, will be left to a non-partisan board. It is conceded that such management must never become a "political football".

Mr. Norvoll, 19 years old, is employed at the Eden Publishing Company in St. Louis, having moved to that city four years ago. His wife and her step-father and mother, J. W. O'Neal, also moved to the city some three years ago.

CITIES SERVICE CO. LEASE SENSENBAUGHS

Arrangements were completed this week between Sensenbaugh Brothers Service Station and O. M. "Ichy" Arthur, whereby the Service Station will hereafter handle the full line of Cities Service products exclusively. New pumps and eqiupment were installed Wednesday of this week, making the largest service station in Sikeston and Southeast Missouri as a unit in the Cities Service organization.

The regular line of commercial Koolmotor high test anti-knock gas and the full line of oils and greases are being stocked.

According to R. E. Marsh, district supervisor and Ichy Arthur, sales representative for the company, stated that this policy of obtaining new leases was in line with the expansion program outlined for 1930 by the Cities Service Oil Company.

The parent station in Sikeston leased by E. E. Arthur is not affected by new arrangement with Sensenbaughs and will continue in business at the corner of Center and Kingshighway.

Cities Service has long been established in the North and East, and embarked two years ago on a South and West expansion program, which in 1930 calls for the expenditure of $150,000,000. One novel feature of this program lies in the fact that uniformly constructed service stations are to be constructed in new territory developed by the company.

JOHN WM. MILLER

John William Miller was born February 11, 1872 in East Prairie. He lived in East Prairie and vicinity until two years ago when he moved to Scott County. He departed this life December 27, 1929.

On March 14, 1895, he was married to Miss Mary Tompkins of East Prairie. To this union there were born eight children, three of which have preceded him in death.

Mr. Miller was for twenty-two years, a member of the Brotherhood of American Yeowman. He is also a member of one of the oldest families of Mississippi County. He was a devoted father and husband. It is said by his friends that he never shirked a duty.

Although he never belonged to any church, it is said that he showed a change in his life before his going away. He told a friend that he never lay down to sleep at night with first talking with his God, in prayer.

He leaves to mourn his going, a devoted companion, Mrs. Mary Miller, five children, Bryan, Lucian, Violet, Blach and George and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral was conudcted by Rev. A. C. Rudloff, pastor of the First Baptist church.

A. 3rd Inf. at Fort Snelling, and a member of Co. H.

George says there is no place like the Army, good eats, and good beds are furnished, and he has a house to himself. Mr. Bean has been in the army for one and a half years.

It looks as though the enforcement of the 18th Amendment is closely drawing to a civil war. First one and the other of the wets and drys are shot and the war grows more bitter. Some of the drys have murdered innocent people in cold blood and nothing done. Then we read where some wet has killed a dry officer and we feel like that is all right and only balances the thing. This is the wrong feeling, of course, but it creeps in just the same. To kill a man, and deliberately do it, as has most of the dry officers, for the matter of attempting to stop people from drinking liquor or beer, and let the foreign gangsters terrorize nearly every city in the country and the Federal Government spend $30,000,000 for one and nothing for the other, makes disrespectors of the 18th Amendment, the laws, and all. We would hate to be classed with the wet violators and we are certainly not for the dry killers as they have been operating. Give us some relief in a modification of some sort or we will all be racketeers, anarchists, socialists or worse.

This is a mighty good time for every married man who does not own a home to now make the start. It takes some money to secure a lot, but after that there are any number of Building & Loan Asociations who will furnish the rest. The amount now paid for rent will about pay the monthly dues and in the course of time you will own a home of your own. Look into the matter.

While the Administration at Washington has been telling of the wonderful prosperity in the land, they remind us much of the boy who whistles while passing a grave yard to keep up his courage. If there was real prosperity why have Big Business and Big Corporations tell us how many millions of dollars they expect to start to spend in 1930. We are just a little skeptical.

Beauty is but skin deep and ugly is to the bone, so said a chap who attended the dance the other evening, though he said if she was of good form he didn't mind gazing at her even if he couldn't see the bone.

The year 1929 is a closed incident except for the joys and sorrows it brought to families which will long be remembered. The New Year just beginning will be much what we make it. Let's make the most of it. Let's try to shed a little more sunshine and forget the frowns that fight to come to the fore. It doesn't always take money to make sunshine. Kind words backed by sincerity is the greatest of all. Stand ready to encourage with word and deed and forget as far as possible the unpleasant things of the past.

Of the reminders received by the editor during the holidays, none were more appreciated than the copy of "Robert Devoy", by Frank Sosey of the Palmyra Spectator, which was a true story of the Palmyra Massacre of civilians by Gen'l. McNeil, a Federal officer, during the Civil War.

While other branches of industry are seeking aid from the Government through the Farm Bureau Board or tariff laws, we fail to note where country editors are keeping a lobby to look after their interests in Washington, or asking for anything beyond the wood and pumpkins due on subscriptions.

The business manager hopes the editor will refrain from potgutted remarks in The Standard during the New Year. He is willing that he write paragraphs that the most "simple mind" can grasp, but wants him to lay off those that rasp.

Another resolve The Standard is making is to collect in full some of the accounts owing—or have them collected. It takes money to pay doctors, the hands, put up-to-date machinery in the shop, buy food, fuel and clothes, so govern yourself accordingly if you owe this shop.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever until you marry her and she refuses to let you live in ease and comfort as before.

A mighty good New Year resolve would be for every farmer and every townman to raise a garden sufficient to feed his own family if no more. The year just closed was one of the best on this farming section that we have had in many years and all hope and pray for many just as good to follow. However, it will not do to trust altogether to Providence, but do our part with a garden and a variety of farm crops to help. Lay out your land with a view of having something ready for the market all during the season in order to bring in money without having to borrow from the bank. The man who has been the least pressed has been the one who did not plant more than could be worked and who did not put all his eggs in one basket.

In the current issue of Collier's, United States Senator Harry B. Hawes is classified as the leader of the wets in the Senate in an article under the caption, "Hobby Hawes", by "The Gentleman at the Keyhole".

A "man of sudden and tremendous enthusiasms", Hawes is characterized by the writer as "your true amateur, always alive to the possibilities of interest in everything, never settling down to the dull business of knowing everything about one thing and nothing about anything else".

"He has the advantage of good looks", the article continues. "In his younger days he was known as Handsome Harry Hawes. He has the charm which men have who take little thought of themselves, who adventure among enthusiasms, who are generous, who carry along through the years a great deal of the spirit of youth.

"One wonders how, pleasing himself as much as he has, he has been able to get far in politics. Nevertreless, he, of a class not usually successful in city politics, was once the Democratic boss of St. Louis. He has been, moverover, a Congressman and is now a Senator. He has the capacity of attaching people to him and of making them like him.

"I present this picture of him not because he is a great Senator, but because he, if anyone, is the leader of the wets in the Senate. There has been a great political mortality among the leading wets in the Upper House. Wadsworth was defeated. And Edge, a lesser figure, has become an Ambassador.

"So the most outstanding wet of today is Handsome Harry Hawes of Missouri. The clash between the wets and the drys is not as sharp today as it was a year ago or two years ago, perhaps, because Mr. Hawes has shuffled the prohibition question temporarily over to the Law Enforcement Commission.

"But partly because you do not have the always angry and intolerant Mr. Bruce of Maryland injecting the question into every discussion and partly because you do not have the striking and sensational Jim Reed keeping the issues always on the front page.

"Harry Hawes is not made of the same kind of stuff as those two men. He is not so sharp tongued and uncompromising. He is of too friendly a nature to use words that sting and burn in Senate debates.

"He finds his outlets in his enthusiasms about things that do not bring him into violent clash with his fellows in the Senate.

"But he has one old-fashioned Democratic virtue; his fidelity to the cause of individual freedom. There is enough of the old South about him so that he is himself an individualist. He is against prohibition as an invasion of the individual's rights.

LEGG CONFIDENT OF GRAIN MEN'S ACTION

Washington, December 27.—Confidence that grain traders would refrain from going to extremes to defeat the purposes of the agricultural marketing act was expressed today by Chairman Legge of the Farm Board.

After addressing the annual session of the American Farm Economics Association, he expressed this opinion in response to questions by Edgar B. Brossard, member of the Tariff Commission. Legge had outlined the policies and programs of the board.

"The only thing we are worrying about", said Legge, "is the collective action of our own clients, the farmers. That is going to tell the story, not the question of the opposition of outsiders".

Brossard asked if the board had any plan for meeting competition of private grain dealers. Legge replied the co-operatives had to face that competition and could become equally efficient, as they had control of the volume, providing they had "an equally efficient organization for the actual sales".

NO MORE TRADE DAY ADS

We have just received notice from postal authorities that newspapers containing advertisements of Trades Days are not mailable. If the postal department will now further reduce their price on printed envelopes below the cost of production and prevail on Congress to appropriate funds to cover the deficit, it will utilize another opportunity to embarass the newspapers of the country without serving any useful purpose.

In the advertisements of Trades Days carried in this newspaper, we have studiously avoided any mention of anything bordering on lottery, in order to try to conform to the departments' hairsplitting technicalities. We would like to know who ever attended a circus, a county fair or a carnival, that did not operate games and devices that were bold games of chance, and in which no pretense was made to obscure the element of gambling, yet we have heard of no instance of such concerns being barred from transmitting their publicity through the mails.

We have refrained from publishing accounts of Trades Day activities in Dexter through fear of running counter to some exacting postal rule, yet we read a full account of these same Daxter Trades days in newspapers published in neighboring cities, with impunity.

We realize that there is a reason for this watchful interest being particularly centered on Dexter, and we have very good ideas as to who it is that is provoking the watchfulness. If the manner in which the Trades Days are conducted in Dexter amounted to, or even approached the nature of a gambling or lottery scheme, we would honor the party who is making the complaint, but knowing that such is not the case, we regard his tactics as despicable.—Dexter Messenger.

LAST CALL FOR SOLDIER BONUS: CLAIMS MUST BE FILED BY THURS. MIDNITE

There are about 400,000 men and women in the United States who can get from Uncle Sam—for the mere asking—cash or a bit of paper worth from $1 to about $1600.

But these men and women, who are World War soldiers and sailors, marines and yeomanettes, must speak for it before Thursday midnight, or forever hold their peace.

The adjusted compensation act of 1924 provided for payment of all veterans or their dependents in accordance with the service they gave. It guaranteed a monetary recompense to every man who served more than 60 days at home or in the trenches, and the only proviso it laid down was that requests be made to the branch in which the service was rendered—before January 3, 1930.

This is the time of year to be especially careful of trichinosis. Most cases of this serious disease result from farm slaughtering of pigs and the eating of raw sausage from small, uninspected establishments. Pork and pork products should be thoroughly cooked.

HOWARD MORRISON WITH FEDERAL LAND BANK

His duties will be similar to those of James Moccabee, who has been with this same company for the past several years.

More than 7800 miles of Federal aid roads were built in 1928. In all, 74,783 miles of roads were improved during the year, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In a post-mortem examination of one or two chickens shows that the poultry flock has worms, 2 per cent by weight of finely powdered tobacco dust should be added to the dry mash. The dust should contain at least 1.5 per cent nicotine. This will control roundworms and also, to some extent, cecum worms, and lessen the danger to young chicks and poults next spring.

ARTIFICIAL BROODING FOR BIGGER POULTRY PROFITS

A hen can act as foster mother for from 10 to 20 chicks while a small brooder can take care of 100, and one of moderate size can accommodate up to 500 or more. But little more attention is required for a single brooder than for a hen and her tiny family. The fuel cost for brooder operation is negligible in comparison with the labor cost required in caring for an equivalent number of chicks with hens. It is self-evident, therefore, that where profit is the primary requirement, in the handling of large numbers of chciks, artificial brooding is the onl method worthy of consideration.

Thousands of chicks can be raised successfully by artificial means where dozens would be handled with difficulty if hens were used. This is a fact so well known to professional poultrymen that they would probably question the need of discussing the problem at all. I have found, however, that many to whom the poultry raising is merely incidental to other occupations, are still inclined to mistrust any substitute for the time tested method of nature's own devising.

They are deterred, for the most part, by a belief that artificial brooding is unreliable unless supplemented by constant care. This may have been true some years ago but, today, moderately priced brooders are available which are absolutely dependable to operate, economical, and which require relatively little attention to insure satisfactory results.

Another factor which no doubt keeps many smaller operators from adopting artificial brooding is the multitude of conflicting claims made by the adherents of various methods. This tends to make a really simple matter appear quite complicated. As a matter of fact, there is no one method of outstanding superiority and no single device that is decidedly better than all others.

The thing to be considered first of all is the size of your flock as a whole, and next the size of individual broods which you can handle with the greatest ease. Then, buy as many units as you need, install and operate them according to the manufacturer's instructions. You will find that it is a really simple matter after all and a labor saver of decided value even for comparatively small numbers of chicks.

The principle used in all brooders is the same: some artificial means of furnishing heat as a substitute for the hen's natural body heat. The heating unit may use gas, kerosene, hot water, coal or electricity. Whatever is used, the general arrangement remains the same. The unit is centrally located under a circular metal hood so arranged that the heat is deflected downward from the hood onto the backs of the chicks. Around this hood is usually a slit curtain to partially confine the heat. This unit with hood and curtain is called the hover.

The hover unit is the central feature of any system of artificial brooding. Space is lacking in an article of this kind to discuss the various types of brooders, all of which have their uses. They will be discussed in a late article.

Artificial brooding offers you the opportunity to bring into poultry raising the same sort of mass production methods which make possible the gigantic commercial enterprises of our time. Without such methods, no business can ever progress beyond the "one horse" stage. If you raise chickens only for the needs of your own family, profit is a secondary consideration and the system employed is of no great moment. If, however, you are aiming for profits, you cannot afford to ignore the efficiency of modern devices for artificial brooding.

As a parting word of advice, let me counsel those who hestiate to adopt the modern method of brooding not to regard it as something of brooding not to regard it as something surrounded by mystery or hedged about by difficulties demanding professional skill. Quite the reverse is true, for, while it is true that artificial brooding has its problems, they are much the same as those of natural brooding and no more difficult of solution. There are, moreover, many compensating factors in favor of artificial brooding wrich make it the inescapable choice of all who want to realize the greatest possible profit from their chicken raising whether it is their sole source of income or merely a side issue.

The saddest sight that one could imagine was an 18-year-old mother lying cold in death with twin baby girls lying close to her side. This was Thursday morning and God took the mother and babes to Him on Monday morning last in St. Louis. To look on these forms involuntarily made one make the sign of the cross on which Jesus died that we might be saved. She gave her life to bring forth these babes then God took the babes that they might be with their mother. The bodies were at the Albritton undertaking establishment.

A Ziegfeld Show is coming to Sikeston.

For the first time in the history of this city the Ziegfeld banner will fly above the Malone Theatre when Florenz Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl" will be shown Thursday and Friday.

"Glorifying the American Girl" can truly be called an all-Ziegfeld production. It is built around the typical rise to Ziegfeld stage fame of an ambitious small-town girl who achieves "glorified" fame under the Ziegfeld pennant after many hardships and heart-breaks.

Mary Eaton, herself a young lady who had aspirations to Ziegfeld stardom and who eventually became Ziegfeld's premiere damseuse, has the leading role in the production. Scores of glorified American beauties support Miss Eaton in the lavish spectacle scenes. Helen Morgan, of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat" fame, and Eddie Cantor, inimitable comic of "Kid Boots", and "Whoopee", Ziegfeld stage successes, are cast in the production, appearing in individual skits in a special revue sequence of the picture.

J. B. McEvoy and Millard Webb wrote the story. McEvoy is the author of the story on which Ziegfeld's "Show Girl" was based.

The music and lyrics for "Glorifying the American Girls" were written by Walter Donaldson, Irving Berlin, Dave Stamper and Larry Spier. Revue finals and ballet ensembles were staged by John Harkrider and Ted Shawn.

In all it is a tuneful, danceful comedy-packed extravaganza, glamorously glorified with gorgeous girls—a film in which Ziegfeld out-Ziegfelds Ziegfeld.

TWO FORMER SIKESTONIANS MARRIED THANKSGIVING DAY

Friends of Miss Mildred Christian and Fred Allard were surprised to learn last week Wednesday of the marriage of the couple last Thanksgiving day. The couple arrived in Sikeston Christmas and spent the night at the home of Mrs. Jane Mills, with whom Miss Christian lived for four years while employed in Sikeston.

Details of the wedding are not available at present, but it is generally understood that the ceremony took place at Marian, Ark., the wedding party going to Memphis, Tenn., to spend the night.

Miss Christian enjoyed the friendship of the entire younger set in town. She left to assume a position with the Bell Telephone Company at Jonesboro, Ark., last August.

Mr. Allard was employed in the local highway office for a number of years, and left the city this summer to assume a similar position with the Webster Groves office, where he is employed at present.

The recent bride will remain at Jonesboro until another girl can take over her dutes. The couple hopes to be able to start housekeeping in Webster Groves by March next.

SCHOOL MEETS "NEW FACULTY" MEMBER AT ASSEMBLY

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise complied with the insistent demands of his student body Monday morning to hold a special assembly. Shortly after the students were assembled, Mr. Ellise explained that the meeting was called to order to introduce a "new" faculty member, and immediately called upon Mrs. Lottie Dover Cunningham for a speech.

The students were reminded that Christmas vacation was now over, and that teachers should keep in mind the fact that it might require a day or so for the boys and girls to get back into the swing of studying. Exams were also brought to mind by the statement that reviews, thorough in nature, would be on schedule until next Thursday and Friday, the two fatal days.

Attention was directed to the proposed night school for adults. Mr. Ellise pointed out that persons other than students could avail themselves of an opportunity to learn commercial work, typing, shorthand and bookkeeping and perhaps other subjects by attending special classes at night. Those interested are urged to get in touch with him at once so that plans for the school can be perfected.

...d at the Postoffice at Sikeston, ...t County, Missouri, as second-class mail matter, according to act of Congress.

Rates:

Yearly subscription in Scott and the adjoining counties $1.50
Yearly subscription elsewhere in the United States $2.00

The year 1930 holds much in store for Sikeston and her citizens if they will get behind the projects. Two of the main things will be the erecting of a municipal power, light and ice plant, and the laying of the concrete slab on Highway 61 direct north of Sikeston to Ancell. The former will soon pay for itself and then be the means of financing other improvements. The latter, if placed on or about the present survey directly north, will give us a concrete connection through the city, both north and south. If the slab is finally placed on the east survey, skirting Sikeston, we never will get a slab built north to it. This should not be forgotten.

During the week, the editor was visited by a representative of a large number of citizens in the hill section of the county asking us to start a paper at Benton to be run on the same plan and as independent as is The Standard. This is mighty fine and The Standard editor will take over the paper already established in that city if they can arrange for the sale of it.

We see by the papers where a Tennessean was fined $10 and was forced to spend a night in jail for hurling a brick at a road hog. The man from Tennessee tooted once, and tooted again. The r. h. would not, did not move. "Slam" came the brick, and broke a windshield. Somehow we feel that justice miscarried. We sometimes feel that an armored car would be the thing to teach a road hog a few rules of common sense driving. Also we would like to have just one full swipe at the nitwit who dodges out of side roads onto boulevards, heavily traveled streets and arterial highways.

"Pay as you go" would be a fine motto for all of us from now on. You would buy less and all merchants would be glad to have your business.

After an improved road has been made, little attention is paid as a rule to the roadside. From the point of view of the driver, the road may be a marvelous piece of work but to the esthetically inclined passenger, the outlook may be quite different. The average highway is lined with jagged cuts, homely banks, tree trunks and refuse of one kind or another. The Vermont Chamber of Commerce has started in upon a campaign to beautify the roads and roadsides and is endeavoring to make it a nation-wide movement. Connecticut sets out rambler roses, woodbine and honeysuckle. Many other states set out trees in large numbers. This, together with the efforts being made to overcome the billboard nuisance, may have the effect of restoring the rural scenery to an acceptable condition.

Well, we have heard it said that Walter Kendall will probably have as competitors for the office of police chief, both J. H. Hayden and Wade Tucker. As it is early in the year and the election not until April there is plenty of time for a dozen more to get the bee in their bonnet. Only $5 for an announcement in this race.

We haven't very much use for the man who makes his living in a town but who constantly buys the things he and his family need from some other town or city. He is nothing but a parasite, feeding off the community but contributing nothing to it. And we can see no difference between the man who buys his clothing, furniture or anything else away from home and the man or firm who sends away for his printing—it is the same principle and the same process exactly.—Democrat Argus.

More than 100 years before the Christian era a form of talking picture with motion originated in China and has continued in popularity to the present day. This is the ancient Chinese shadow play which gave the illusion of talking pictures by having readers to produce voice effects. The scenarios of the shadow plays are still derived from the literary drama of the legitimate stage but they have more appeal to the masses as the worlds are recited in the current vernacular rather than in the highly classic diction of the stage.

SAM GRABER HELD UP IN KENNETT STORE SUN. NIGHT

Kennett, December 27.—Sam Graber, of the local Graber Store Co., had the novel experience Sunday night of being held up in his own store by two armed men. The store owner had returned from Cardwell about 10:25 o'clock and walked to the wrapping counter, where a night lamp is kept burning continuously. He was accosted by the night prowler, who was joined soon after by an assistant. The men did not rob Mr. Graber, nor did they take anything from the store. No arrests have been made.

One serious and 19 minor injuries resulted from the collision of a Pickwick-Greyhound bus at 8:30 o'clock last Saturday morning with Bill Carson's Dodge truck, driven by Walker Bell Chaney on Highway 61, four and one-half miles south of Sikeston. Chaney's truck and the bus were both southbound.

The rear end collision is accounted for by the fact that one of the heaviest fogs recorded in Southeast Missouri blanked out objects even at short distances, and made drivng hazardous. Notice the sacks of sugar on the bus bumper. A tarpaulin originally placed over the load of groceries, finally rested over the crushed roof of the bus.

Passengers in the bus were showered with a deluge of cane sugar and table syrup, which rushed backwards through the shattered windshield.

Chaney was removed to St. Mary's Infirmary, Cairo, Ill., Sunday afternoon, and underwent a major operation the following day. Relatives said Tuesday, that he withstood the operation in good shape, and was fully conscious. He was able to drink a glass of lemonade Tuesday afternoon, the first bit of food since the accident.

BAG LIMITS OF DUCKS, GEESE TO BE CUT IN HALF IN 1930

Washington, December 31.—The bag limit for ducks next year will be 15 and after a hunter kills four geese he will be through for the day.

Secretary Hyde announced today that the changes in Federal regulations would go into effect after the present hunting season and that the possession limit would be reduced to 30 ducks and eight geese. At present the bag limit under Federal law for ducks is 25, and for geese is eight.

An extensive investigation by the Department of Agriculture, which showed that water fowl were not holding their own, was a factor in the decision to reduce the limit.

Blame for the decrease in the number of wild fowl was placed largely upon the elimination of reclamation of former breeding grounds in the Northwest States and Canada.

Mrs. Miller and five children survive.

One of the services accorded the road users in Missouri by the State Highway Department is this "puncture subtracter", or road magnet. Sikeston motorists will remember the big yellow truck with its three 900-pound electro magnetic bells which pulled some 15 gallons of nails and bits of iron and steel from Highway 61 between this city and Morley alone. The insert shows the business end of the road ...net with two of the magnetic bells in position for working. Power is generated by a gasoline engine and dynamo carried on the truck body proper. "Three years of suffering from stomach trouble made a wreck of me. For every meal I paid a price in misery. Gas, bloating, heartburn and indigestion pains were sure to follow. I dieted without result, except to lose weight and strength. Constipation did not yield, except temporarily, to the strongest laxatives.

"With the very first bottle of Konjola came the realization that I had found the right medicine. As I continued taking it, my appetite increased, my digestion was restored, and I rapidly gained in strength and weight. Konjola banished all my ills".

American cheese made on the farm may be paraffined to prevent drying and molding. A convenient way to do this is to heat the paraffin to about 220 degrees F. Roll the cheese in the hot paraffin about 5 or 10 seconds. The cheese is then removed and the top and bottom are dipped. The paraffin must be hot, or it will be too thick to adhere to the cheese.

Poultry need more mineral feed in proportion to their total feed requirements than do most other classes of animals. Mineral feed is best supplied in the form of crushed oyster shells or limestone, which supply the calcium for eggshell formation. The shells or limestone should be kept before the hens all the time. Steamed bone meal, which contains lime and phosphorous, may also be given, usually mixed in with the mash ration.

PROSECUTOR SEEKING MANSLAUGHTER CASE AGAINST DRY PATROL

Buffalo, N. Y., December 27.—The assertion that someone was guilty of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., Christmas night by the three members of the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-2245 was made by District Attorney Guy B. Moore today following upon a City Court inquest in Downey's death. The inquest was adjourned until tomorrow morning at Moore's request.

Moore said the facts, as presented to him, showed the shooting resulted from "culpable negligence".

He asked that the adjournment be made in order that he might examine the statements made by the coast guardsmen Thursday night.

United States Attorney R. H. Templeton, who was prevented by Moore from questioning State witnesses at the hearing, asked that tre men be put on the stand today.

Moore said that might be done if the three would waive immunity of trial for manslaughter. Templeton made no answer and the inquest was adjourned.

Templeton said yesterday he believed the men acted in line of duty. He said they gave Downey, whom they suspected of carrying liquor in his boat, proper warning before they fired on the fleeing craft.

Today's testimony included that of three Buffalo policemen who said they saw two coast guardmen standing near the dock where Downey was lying wounded in his boat.

Moore asked one of the policemen, C. M. Meyers, if the guardmen were making any effort to help and Meyers answered that as far as he could see, they were not.

He said policemen called the ambulance to take Downey to emergency hospital and they, the policemen, bore Downey virtually unconscious, up a ladder from the boat.

Capt. Paul H. Forner of the Coast Guard testified that he had ordered the three men, Orville LaGrant, Randolph H. Thompson and Asa Ennes, to man a boat Christmas afternoon and intercept an elleged rum runner headed toward Buffalo from Canada. Thompson, he said, later reported the shooting to him.

Last night Moore questioned the three guardmen for nearly three hours. The guards agreed, he said, to testify at the inquest. They told him, he said, they thought Downey was attempting to escape with contraband.

DAY BY DAY WITH GOVERNOR PATTERSON

Here is 1930. I find it easier to writer than 1929 and that is something in its favor. It beats all how tempus fugits as the old lady remarked, looking over her spectatcles at nothing in particular. That though, is the way of time. It never stands still, but is forever moving, bearing on those who live on the bosom of its restless tide while others who have dropped by the wayside take no note of its flight.

This should be a better year than the last. It will be, if we have learned from experience and have the virtue to repent of our mistakes committed in the old year, and the energy to atone.

I could wish for our country and its people for the New Year no better wish, that it, and they, should not be led astray by the illusions and delusions which so obscured their sight and changed the temper of their minds, in the year of 1929.

It's dangerous. I might say it is fatal, for any state or any man to be without a God, and the sense of responsibility implied by such a belief, but we have come upon an era when this belief is being assailed, both openly and insidiously, as never before in our country, and we have suffered from it. The restlessness and discontent among so many people that we observe has been largely caused by crowding out from their thoughts those spiritual values, which when lost, can never be replaced. Our age is intensely scientific. No other age has been so dominated by its influence and that influence would be wholly good if science kept always within its sphere and refused to enter paths on which it can shed no light, or to invade the kingdoms of this spirit which it can never invest and make subject to its sway. Science has become too arrogant in its great success. It is not the all sufficient thing in life as it sometimes professes to be, or perhaps it would be fairer and more accurate to say, as some of its misled votaries are vain enough to supose. The true scientific mind does not labor under this hallucination. It is more generally a failing of those who mistake themselves for scientists, or the shallow thinkers who following the scientific train, and imagine their spiritual negations give them some sort of intellectual superiority. They cause a great deal of trouble to others whose mental processes are rather easily confused and who are left helplessly drifting on a sea of uncertainty.

I have never been able to understand the pleasure it gave to proclaim a disbelief in matters involving man's creation and his immortality or attempt to shake the belief of others, leaving them hopeless. I have never known or heard of one of these spiritual iconoclasts who offered anything in the place of what he was trying to destroy or of one who has ever caused a human being to become stronger or better satisfied. What these times and this civilization needs is less doubt and more belief. It needs less the rule of materialism applied to life and its unexpressed desires and meanings and more consciousness of the existence of the soul itself and the verity of its urgings. Less infidelity and more fidelity should be our hope and slogan for 1930.

By that sign we shall conquer, redeem our lost possessions and establish order.—Commercial Appeal.

ask him whom he represents.

You have a right to know if the agent who raps at your door or calls at your office, represents a reliable firm.

Many complaints reach the Better Business Bureau AFTER housewives have had an unsatisfactory experience. Some say that money has been paid on account for an article and that nothing has been received. Others say that merchandise received was of inferior quality or grossly misrepresented.

There are many dependable manfacturers and selling organizations who distribute their product through the use of salesmen who call personally upon the consumer. They sell a worth-while product and are financially respnosible. They welcome investigation.

Their success has been preyed upon by hordes of selling agents many of whom are free lance fakers who are showing a worthless product, or who simply exhibit samples with no intention of doing more than collect a down payment.

It is good practice to demand credentials from agents who visit your home or your office. If the firm or the product is unknown to you, GET THE FACTS from the Better Business Bureau. There is no cost.

Before you buy from strangers—get the facts.

To produce a stippled finish on walls, apply a flat wall paint somewhat thicker than that ordinarily used, and dab the surface, before the paint sets, with a stiff, dry brush held a right angles. A regular stippling brush is best for this purpose. If a mottled finish is wanted, apply wall paint over a ground color of another shade, and while still wet, touch the surface lightly with crinkled wrapping paper loosely held.

KID NEW YEAR GETS QUIET RECEPTION HERE

Boiserous celebrations usually in evidence on New Year's eve, were not in evidence in Sikeston. A few cannon crackers responded on the streets early in the evening, but at midnight the tolling of a single bell and the popping of a handful of firecrackers sufficed as far as outward signs of the reception were concerned.

Whether or not there was the customary tinkle of ice and glasses, and the popping of corks in private homes and at parties, is of course not for publication. So far as we know, prohibition agents made no secial attempts to dry up the city.

A few parties in private homes looked for the 1930 arrival in well-manner watch parties. One Sikeston radio fan reports listening in on four different New Year's parties, Eastern Standard, Central, Rocky Mountain and West Coast time.

Miss Virginia Crafton of Blytheville, Ark., left Friday after spending a few days with the Glover girls and relatives in Sikeston.

Ben Chaney will return to Boulder, Colo., Friday, after sending the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Kate Harris and daughters.

"There Must Be Somebody Waiting For Me", from "Glorifying the American Girl". Sheet music at Derris Drug Store.

Clyde Graham, formerly connected with the local Highway office, attended the dance at the armory Monday night. Mr. Graham is now located in Hannibal.
